NEGOTIATIONS FOR PEACE IN IRELAND ARE BROKEN OFF

FAILURE TO PLEDGE ALLEGIANCE TO KING BRINGS END! SINN FEIN DELEGATES TO RETURN TO DUBLIN

(By Associated Press)

London, Dec. 5.—Irish peace negotiations have completely broken down, according to statements from responsible quarters, and the Dail Eirean delegates are expected to return finally to Ireland either Tuesday or Wednesday.

Correspondence in connection with the peace negotiations will be made public by the government, and Lloyd George is expected to make an explanatory statement. The refusal of the Sinn Fein to accept oath of allegiance to the king made agreement impossible, since that condition was insisted upon by the British and was an essential preliminary to securing the assent of Ulster.

Truce in Effect

The truce still remains in effect, and no immediate resumption of hostilities is expected. The Sinn Fein delegates paid their final visit to Downing street late today.

The big question at issue between the British government and the representatives of the Irish Republican parliament have been:

Shall Ireland become entirely independent or, if it remain within the British Empire, shall there be two separate governments in Ireland, one for Ulster and one for the rest of the country?

Prime Minister Lloyd George refused to consider any proposal which would put Ireland outside the Empire.

The Sinn Feiners refused to admit that Ireland should be split in two parts.

Ulster refused to unite in one parliament with the Sinn Feiners. It has organied a parliament of its own under the Government of Ireland Act.

Stand for Union

The Sinn Feiners refused to set up a parliament for the South of Ireland, as proposed in that act. They adhered to their own parliament, called the Dail Eireann, which they had set up independently as the governing body of the Irish Republic.

That was the situation when the truce began last July, after King George had made a conciliatory speech at the opening of the new parliament in Ulster.

The purpose of the negotiations now ended, as defined by Lloyd George and accepted by the Sinn Fein representatives was "to ascertain how the association of Ireland with the community of nations known as the British Empire may be best reconciled with Irish national aspirations."

Both Want Peace

The conference began in July. Both sides have at times entertained higher hopes of a final and satisfactory settlement probably than at any time since the Irish question became a thorn in the side of the British Empire, but there have been several crises, and now the negotiations seem to have failed completely.

In view of the fact that both sides are heartily tired of the guerrila war-fare that has been carired on in Ireland during the past years, it is doubtful just what the next move will be. Any attempt by the British Government to enforce its rule in south Ireland would undoubtedly provoke hostilities. On the other hand if Britain allows the Dail Eirean to rule unmolested it is a virtual admission of defeat.

MARKETS EXPOSITION OPENS AT MILWAUKEE

The State Markets Exposition, which opened in Milwaukee today, is attracting a large number of farmers and produce men from throughout the state, County Agricultural Agent Peterson stated today.

Buyers from all over the central west are in attendance, and the exposition offers an unusual opportunity for the advertising of Wisconsin farm products. As a special inducement the railroads of the state are offering special round trip rates, the special fare to Milwaukee and return being approximately one and one-half times the regular one way rate.

The exposition will continue all week.

DEPOT BURGLARS GET PRISON TERM

POPOLOWSKI BROTHERS SENTENCED FOR AUGUSTA BURGLARY. ROBBED STATIONS HERE

Eau Claire, Dec. 5—Stanley and Joseph Popolowski, of Racine, believed to be the men who robbed the Milwaukee Road and Soo Line depots at Wisconsin Rapids the evening of October 20, were found guilty of burglarizing the Augusta ticket office, and sentenced to four years and one year respectively in the state prison by Judge James Wickham.

Stanley, 24, because he had done the actual burglarizing and because he had arrested for other crimes in the past, was given the heavier sentence. Joseph, 28, who had been living straight with his wife at Fond du Lac before he started on the ill-fated trip with his brother, was given the lighter punishment. The charge against him was receiving stolen property. Stanley's wife is teaching school near her parent's home in Crookston, Minn. Joseph told the court that a baby was expected in his home before Christmas. Attorney Jos. W. Singleton was counsel for the defendants.

Several Burglaries

The Popolowski brothers were arrested Oct. 28 while on their way from Menomonie to Eau Claire upon information furnished the sheriff from the town of Amy. At the time of their arrest they were traveling with a motorcycle and side car and were wearing army O. D. clothing; their appearance with the description given of the men who burglarized the Augusta and Fairchild ticket offices. Three large-sized change purses, two stamped with the address of Augusta banks, and one with that of Menomonie bank, which were found in their possession, strengthened the belief of the authorities that the two men had committed the burglaries. Similar burglaries at Wisconsin Rapids and River Falls were believed to have been committed by the pair.

Were Armed

In the side car were found two 45 calibre army model Colt revolvers, a supply of ammunition and burglar tools. Stanley Popolowski had a Victory medal which he said he bought at an army store in the Twin Cities. The medals are given only to ex-service men upon evidence of an honorable discharge.

VOLUNTEER TRAFFIC GUARDS

Milwaukee—Appointment of volunteer women traffic guards to protect children on their way to and from school is suggested by Joseph Stein, member of the Milwaukee safety commission. Mr. Stien announced that he would bring up the suggestion at the next meeting of the safety commission Dec. 8, and that he would also call a meeting of women to ascertain their views.

ALLEGE INTIMIDATION OF ARBUCKLE JUROR

(By Associated Press)

San Francisco, Dec. 5—Mrs. Helen R. Hubbard, the lone juror who is said to have held out against the acquittal of Roscoe Arbuckle, charged today that attempts had been made to intimidate her. A grand jury investigation is promised by the District Attorney.

The jury trying Arbuckle was discharged yesterday, following a failure to come to an agreement. Jurors, questioned after their discharge, declared that had it not been for Mrs. Hebbard they would have returned a verdict of not guilty within ten minutes. Mrs. Hubbard, they said, voted for conviction on every ballot, and would listen to no argument or discussion of the evidence. She simply said that "she would vote guilty on every ballot until hell froze over," August Fritze, foreman of the jury said.

Both sides agreed to January 9 for the retrial of the case.

WILL COST LESS TO TRAVEL WITH TAX OFF

Local passenger agents for the railroads here have received word of the recent law enacted by congress and signed by the President relieving the public of paying war tax on railroad tickets. The difference in cost of fare now will be lessened by eight per cent the original tax. This new order is pursuant to the Revenue Tax Act 1921. The tax will be removed on and after Jan 1, 1922.

The cost of a ticket from Wisconsin Rapids to Marshfield will be 7 cents less on both the Soo and Northwestern lines. The tax reduction on tickets between this city and St. Paul amounts to 53 cents and to Chicago 78 cents on the Soo and on the Northwestern there will be a difference of 19 cents to Wausau, 12 cents to Wautoma, 28 cents to Fond du Lac, 46 cents to Milwaukee and 70 cents to Chicago all in favor of the passenger.

Similar reductions in favor of the passengers will be enjoyed on the other two lines whose offices could not be reached by the Tribune representative today. The dropping of the tax will save the passenger public millions of dollars annually.

ELKS PAY TRIBUTE DEPARTED BROTHERS AT MEMORIAL SERVICE

Over two hundred Elks, members of their families and friends attended the Memorial day services Sunday afternoon at the Elks Lodge when John T. Armstead, prominent Duluth, Minn. Elk delivered the memorial address. Mr. Armstead gave one of the best memorial addresses ever heard in the Elks lodge. He was especially well equipped to head the program as he has given memorial addresses all over the United States for Elks lodges during the past twenty-four years. His address dwelt largely on Immortality and was a splendid message from a layman.

The Elks memorial service ritual was carried on by the regular officers of the lodge, Exalted Ruler Frank D. Abel presiding.

Judge W. J. Conway gave a splendid eulogy to the late Postmaster R. L. Nash, paying tribute to him as a man, a faithful servant of the public, whom he served many years as head of the local postoffice, as a tender and loving husband and father and as a true and loyal member of the order. It was a masterful tribute.

GIVE SENTENCES IN LOCAL CASES

BURGLAR OF GREEN BAY DEPOT GETS FOUR YEARS; BOYARSKE IS FREED ON PAROLE

William B. Hawthorne, who confessed to burglarizing the Green Bay & Western passenger station here of $51, was sentenced to four years in the state penitentiary at Waupun by Judge Byron B. Park of Stevens Point today.

Hawthorne committeed the burglary on the evening of Thursday, November 24. Through the efforts of the local police he was apprehended at Appleton the following Monday, and immediately brought back here, where he made a complete confession to Chief Payne.

Released On Parole

William Boyarski, seventeen year old local boy who admitted burglarizing the home of Anton Golla here, was sentenced to four years in the Green Bay reformatory by Judge Parks. In view of his youth, and because of the fact that it was his first offense, he was released on parole.

George Webster, an Indian who was arraigned before Judge Getts about a week ago on the charge of beating a hotel bill at Auburndale, was sentenced to one year in the Green Bay reformatory. Webster, it appears, ran up a bill of $23 at an Auburndale hotel, and then returned to his home in Oneida county without the formality of a settlement.

Indians Sentenced

Charles Hindsley and Moyah Simon, Arpin Indians charged with a statutory offense, were given sentences of sixty days and thirty days respectively in the Wood county jail by Judge Parks. They were found guilty of living together.

Joseph Hand of the town of Wood, was found guilty of making and selling moonshine, and given 90 days in the county jail. A search of Hand's premises revealed a quantity of mash, and a supply of raw liquor, which it is alleged he had been selling in Babcock.

IRISH RELIEF FUND CAMPAIGN STARTS IN CITY

LOCAL CHAIRMAN OF AMERICAN COMMITTEE OF RELIEF APPOINTS COMMITTEES TO SOLICIT AND RECEIVE DONATIONS

City Chairman T. E. Mullen has appointed the following named persons to solicit and receive donations for the American Committee for relief in Ireland:

First ward, Peter Love, F. J. Wood; Second ward, Ferd Link, Miss Belle Quinn; Third ward, T. W. Brazeau, Mrs. W. F. Kellogg; Fourth ward, Fred Roenius, Mrs. L. A. DeGuere, Mrs. G. F. LaBour; Fifth ward, Rev. F. C. Ciszewski, Mrs. Hannah Akey; Sixth ward, C. F. Kelolgg, Mrs. John Hollmuller; Seventh ward, B. R. Goggins, M. H. Jackson; Eighth ward, Geo. M. Hill and Mike Cepress.

Not Catholic Drive

This campaign is being carried on not by the Catholic church exclusively, as stated in Saturday's issue of the Tribune, but by all denominations and is backed by thousands of prominent Americans and endorsed by President Harding, Secretary Hoover, Governor Blaine and numerus others.

For Needy of Ireland

The moneys collected will be distributed to all the needy in Ireland regardless of color, race or creed. An extract from a letter received by the local chairman from the headquarters is as follows:

"This distribution through the Irish White Cross insures a non-partisan and absolutely non-sectarian relief work, the sole attribute for relief being need, regardless of creed, political affiliation or nationality. The extreme measures used in reprisals have brought about suffering alike to Jew and Gentile, those innocent suffering often times more than those engaged in the controversy."

It is urgently requested that those wishing to make donations will do so by check or calling on the different committeemen.

LIMIT IMPORTATION OF CORN INTO STATE

Madison, Wis., Dec. 5—A quarantine order prohibiting shipment of corn and a number of vegetables into Wisconsin from corn borer infested districts of Ohio, Michigan and several other eastern states, was issued today by the state department of agriculture.

The areas affected by the order include one county in the southeastern corner of Michigan, practically the entire northern border of Ohio, Erie county, Pa., about one-half of New York and Massachusetts, and a part of Massachusetts. All of these areas are infested by the European corn borer which proved to be injurious this season.

The regulation, which is signed by C. P. Norgord, commissioner and S. B. Fracher, state entomologist, prohibits the importation of the following products into Wisconsin from the infested areas: Corn and Broom corn, all sorghums, sudan grass, celery, green beans in the pod, beets with tops, spinach, rhubarb, oat and rye straw as such or used as packing, cut flowers or entire plants.

CITIES REGULATE OWN DANCE HALLS

Madison, Wis., Dec. 5—Dancing and dance halls are a matter for local regulation and not for state unless specific statutes are violated, Attorney General Morgan advised Alvin B. Peterson of Prairie du Chien, in an opinion today. He told then that the city council had power to enact ordinances, under its police power, governing the conduct of all public places where dancing is allowed.

Complaints had been made in Prairie du Chien against dancing in ice-cream parlors. The city council took the stand that regulation was a matter of state concern, not city. Attorney General Morgan pointed out that the state could not interfere unless a particular statute was violated, but that the legislature had specifically authorized cities to regulate dancing places.

The time when dancing must stop may also be determined by city ordinance, Mr. Morgan said.

Congress Receives First Annual Budget

Budget Summary
Exclusive of postal revenues and postal expenditures paid from postal revenues

	1923, estimated	192, estimated	1921, actual
Total receipts	$3,338,182,750	$3,943,453,663	$5,624,932,960.91
Total expenditures, including reduction principal of public debt	3,505,754,727	3,967,922,366	5,538,040,689.30
Excess of expenditures	167,571,977	24,468,703
Excess of receipts			86,892,271.61

(By Associated Press)

Washington, Dec. 5—The Federal Budget for the fiscal year 1923—the first to be compiled under the new Budget Act—as presented to congress at the opening of the new session today, shows estimated expenditures of $3,505,754,727, a decrease of $462,167,639 as compared to the estimated outgo for the fiscal year 1922, ending next June 30, and a reduction of $2,032,285,962 from the actual outlay for the fiscal year 1921.

Adjust Deficit

Estimated receipts for 1923 are placed at $3,338,182,750, leaving an apparent deficit of $167,571,977. In transmitting the budget to Congress today, President Harding says "ways are provided for the relatively easy adjustment" of the discrepancy between income and outgo "without added taxation." As one means he recommends legislation directing the reduction of the naval supply account by $100,000,000.

Actual appropriations asked of Congress for the various federal departments and agencies for 1923 total $3,224,875,592, exclusive of Postoffice Department. This represents a reduction of $122,806,310 from the original estimated as presented to the budget bureau, it is stated, but is approximately $27,000,000 more than the appropriations for this fiscal year.

Explaining the $280,879,134 excess of estimated expenditures in 1923 over the appropriations asked for, Budget Bureau officials explain that some of the funds actually to be put out will be carried over in continuing appropriations and by other means. They say that appropriations for a given year do not accurately reflect actual expenses for that year, pointing out that while the appropriations for this fiscal year were $3,197,807,962, the estimated actual outgo will exceed this sum by approximately $770,000,000.

War Expense High

Of the total estimated expenditures for 1923, approximately $2,900,000,000 is to pay for past wars and to keep up the fighting arms of the government, leaving only about $600,000,000 for the peace-time pursuits of the federal establishment. The estimate for the army and the navy is $801,636,107, a reduction of $66,305,2299 as compared with this fiscal year and $956,352,741 as compared with the fiscal year 1921.

The navy estimate of $431,754,000, it is explained, does not take into account any possible reductions that might be brought about as a result of the arms conference, the total including funds for continuing work on the ships of the 1916 program, most of which would be scrapped under the proposal made to the conference by the American government.

Dawes Makes Report

Accompanying the budget as sent to Congress is a detailed report from Director General Dawes as to the operation of the budget bureau since its establishment five months ago and some pointed comemnts as to means of continuing its efficient operation. Discussing the reception of the budget by Congress, General Dawes says:

"It is to be expected that since the preliminary estimates have been made under pressure by the executive for proper retrenchment, where consistent with efficiency, it will not be necessary, as heretofore, for Congress to make radical cuts upon estimates of the budget with any uncertainty as to what will be the result as it effects efficiency. The President of the United States, when he sends the budget to Congress is presumed to send it with all the reductions in expenditures which can be effected without due impairment of governmental business processes. In the preparation of the budget he has had at work an authorized agency in the bureau not only in ascertaining the reasonableness of desired appropriations, but in continually imposing pressure upon the departments for a

NEW LONDON MAN IS SUED BY LEGION

CHARGE FORMER CANDIDATE FOR CONGRESS WITH ASSERTION THAT LEGION OPPOSES UNIONS

(By Associated Press)

Omaha, Neb.—F. H. Shoemaker of New London, Wis., was named defendant in a $100,000 suit filed in state District court on Saturday, by William Ritchie, Jr., state commander of the American Legion, on behalf of the Nebraska department of the legion. Mr. Ritchie charges that Shoemaker at a recent labor meeting, made false statements concerning the legion.

MacNider Approves

The action against Mr. Shoemaker charged that among the statements he made were assertions that the legion was subsidized by "big interests" and that it was opposed to organized labor, it is charged. Mr. Ritchie said he obtained approval of the court action by long distance telephone from the legion national commander who was in San Francisco with Marshal Foch of France, on Saturday. He declared the legion did not care about recovering damages but wanted to prove at a hearing that the legion was not opposed to organized labor.

The action against Mr. Shoemaker came about the same time that a jury in federal court disagreed and was discharged in his $50,000 suit against Hartington, Neb., citizens whom he charged with using tar and feathers on him after he had delivered a Non-partisan league address.

Well Known Here

Shoemaker is well known in Wisconsin Rapids, having been a candidate for congressman from this district in the election a year ago last November. At that time he claimed to be a LaFollette Republican, but was not supported by the state LaFollette organization.

Hawthorne committed the burglary on the evening of Thursday, November 24. Through the efforts of the local police he was apprehended at Appleton the following Monday, and immediately brought back here, where he made a complete confession to Chief Payne.

Released On Parole

William Boyarski, seventeen year old local boy who admitted burglarizing the home of Anton Golla here, was sentenced to four years in the Green Bay reformatory by Judge Parks. In view of his youth, and because of the fact that it was his first offense, he was released on parole.

George Webster, an Indian who was arraigned before Judge Getts about a week ago on the charge of beating a hotel bill at Auburndale, was sentenced to one year in the Green Bay reformatory. Webster, it appears, ran up a bill of $23 at an Auburndale hotel, and then returned to his home in Oneida county without the formality of a settlement.

Indians Sentenced

Charles Hindsley and Moyah Simon, Arpin Indians charged with a statutory offense, were given sentences of sixty days and thirty days respectively in the Wood county jail by Judge Parks. They were found guilty of living together.

Joseph Hand of the town of Wood, was found guilty of making and selling moonshine, and given 90 days in the county jail. A search of Hand's premises revealed a quantity of mash, and a supply of raw liquor, which it is alleged he had been selling in Babcock.

SKIDS INTO CURBING

A car driven by Emmett McGrath skidded at the intersection of Grand avenue and Seventh street last night and crashed into the curb-stone. The car was damaged, but no one was injured.

Ben Hanson, wholesale potato dealer, left this morning for Milwaukee to attend the State Convention of potato growers, which opens in that city today and continues until December 10.

IRISH RELIEF FUND CAMPAIGN STARTS IN CITY

LOCAL CHAIRMAN OF AMERICAN COMMITTEE OF RELIEF APPOINTS COMMITTEES TO SOLICIT AND RECEIVE DONATIONS

City Chairman T. E. Mullen has appointed the following named persons to solicit and receive donations for the American Committee for relief in Ireland:

First ward, Peter Love, F. J. Wood; Second ward, Ferd Link, Miss Belle Quinn; Third ward, T. W. Brazeau, Mrs. W. F. Kellogg; Fourth ward, Fred Roenius, Mrs. L. A. DeGuere, Mrs. G. F. LaBour; Fifth ward, Rev. F. C. Ciszewski, Mrs. Hannah Akey; Sixth ward, C. F. Kelolgg, Mrs. John Hollmuller; Seventh ward, B. R. Goggins, M. H. Jackson; Eighth ward, Geo. M. Hill and Mike Cepress.

Not Catholic Drive

This campaign is being carried on not by the Catholic church exclusively, as stated in Saturday's issue of the Tribune, but by all denominations and is backed by thousands of prominent Americans and endorsed by President Harding, Secretary Hoover, Governor Blaine and numerus others.

For Needy of Ireland

The moneys collected will be distributed to all the needy in Ireland regardless of color, race or creed. An extract from a letter received by the local chairman from the headquarters is as follows:

"This distribution through the Irish White Cross insures a non-partisan and absolutely non-sectarian relief work, the sole attribute for relief being need, regardless of creed, political affiliation or nationality. The extreme measures used in reprisals have brought about suffering alike to Jew and Gentile, those innocent suffering often times more than those engaged in the controversy."

It is urgently requested that those wishing to make donations will do so by check or calling on the different committeemen.

LIMIT IMPORTATION OF CORN INTO STATE

Madison, Wis., Dec. 5—A quarantine order prohibiting shipment of corn and a number of vegetables into Wisconsin from corn borer infested districts of Ohio, Michigan and several other eastern states, was issued today by the state department of agriculture.

The areas affected by the order include one county in the southeastern corner of Michigan; practically the entire northern border of Ohio, Erie county, Pa., about one-half of New York and Massachusetts, and a part of Massachusetts. All of these areas are infested by the European corn borer which proved to be injurious this season.

The regulation, which is signed by C. P. Norgord, commissioner and S. B. Fracher, state entomologist, prohibits the importation of the following products into Wisconsin from the infested areas: Corn and Broom corn, all sorghums, sudan grass, celery, green beans in the pod, beets with tops, spinach, rhubarb, oat and rye straw as such or used as packing, cut flowers or entire plants.

CITIES REGULATE OWN DANCE HALLS

Madison, Wis., Dec. 5—Dancing and dance halls are a matter for local regulation and not for state unless specific statutes are violated, Attorney General Morgan advised Alvin B. Peterson of Prairie du Chien, in an opinion today. He told then that the city council had power to enact ordinances, under its police power, governing the conduct of all public places where dancing is allowed.

Complaints had been made in Prairie du Chien against dancing in ice-cream parlors. The city council took the stand that regulation was a matter of state concern, not city. Attorney General Morgan pointed out that the state could not interfere unless a particular statute was violated, but that the legislature had specifically authorized cities to regulate dancing places.

The time when dancing must stop may also be determined by city ordinance, Mr. Morgan said.

Excess of expenditures	167,571,977	24,468,703	.....
Excess of receipts	.....	.....	86,892,271.61

(By Associated Press)

Washington, Dec. 5—The Federal Budget for the fiscal year 1923—the first to be compiled under the new Budget Act—as presented to congress at the opening of the new session today, shows estimated expenditures of $3,505,754,727, a decrease of $462,167,639 as compared to the estimated outgo for the fiscal year 1922, ending next June 30, and a reduction of $2,032,285,962 from the actual outlay for the fiscal year 1921.

Adjust Deficit

Estimated receipts for 1923 are placed at $3,338,182,750, leaving an apparent deficit of $167,571,977. In transmitting the budget to Congress today, President Harding says "ways are provided for the relatively easy adjustment" of the discrepancy between income and outgo "without added taxation." As one means he recommends legislation directing the reduction of the naval supply account by $100,000,000.

Actual appropriations asked of Congress for the various federal departments and agencies for 1923 total $3,224,875,592, exclusive of Postoffice Department. This represents a reduction of $122,806,310 from the original estimated as presented to the budget bureau, it is stated, but is approximately $27,000,000 more than the appropriations for this fiscal year.

Explaining the $280,879,134 excess of estimated expenditures in 1923 over the appropriations asked for, Budget Bureau officials explain that some of the funds actually to be put out will be carried over in continuing appropriations and by other means. They say that appropriations for a given year do not accurately reflect actual expenses for that year, pointing out that while the appropriations for this fiscal year were $3,197,807,962, the estimated actual outgo will exceed this sum by approximately $770,000,000.

War Expense High

Of the total estimated expenditures for 1923, approximately $2,900,000,000 is to pay for past wars and to keep up the fighting arms of the government, leaving only about $600,000,000 for the peace-time pursuits of the federal establishment. The estimate for the army and the navy is $801,636,107, a reduction of $66,305,2299 as compared with this fiscal year and $956,352,741 as compared with the fiscal year 1921.

The navy estimate of $431,754,000, it is explained, does not take into account any possible reductions that might be brought about as a result of the arms conference, the total including funds for continuing work on the ships of the 1916 program, most of which would be scrapped under the proposal made to the conference by the American government.

Dawes Makes Report

Accompanying the budget as sent to Congress is a detailed report from Director General Dawes as to the operation of the budget bureau since its establishment five months ago and some pointed comemnts as to means of continuing its efficient operation. Discussing the reception of the budget by Congress, General Dawes says:

"It is to be expected that since the preliminary estimates have been made under pressure by the executive for proper retrenchment, where consistent with efficiency, it will not be necessary, as heretofore, for Congress to make radical cuts upon estimates of the budget with any uncertainty as to what will be the result as it effects efficiency. The President of the United States, when he sends the budget to Congress is presumed to send it with all the reductions in expenditures which can be effected without due impairment of governmental business processes. In the preparation of the budget he has had at work an authorized agency in the bureau not only in ascertaining the reasonableness of desired appropriations, but in continually imposing pressure upon the departments for a

CHARGE FORMER CANDIDATE FOR CONGRESS WITH ASSERTION THAT LEGION OPPOSES UNIONS

(By Associated Press)

Omaha, Neb.—F. H. Shoemaker of New London, Wis., was named defendant in a $100,000 suit filed in state District court on Saturday, by William Ritchie, Jr., state commander of the American Legion, on behalf of the Nebraska department of the legion. Mr. Ritchie charges that Shoemaker at a recent labor meeting, made false statements concerning the legion.

MacNider Approves

The action against Mr. Shoemaker charged that among the statements he made were assertions that the legion was subsidized by "big interests" and that it was opposed to organized labor, it is charged. Mr. Ritchie said he obtained approval of the court action by long distance telephone from the legion national commander who was in San Francisco with Marshal Foch of France, on Saturday. He declared the legion did not care about recovering damages but wanted to prove at a hearing that the legion was not opposed to organized labor.

The action against Mr. Shoemaker came about the same time that a jury in federal court disagreed and was discharged in his $50,000 suit against Hartington, Neb., citizens whom he charged with using tar and feathers on him after he had delivered a Non-partisan league address.

Well Known Here

Shoemaker is well known in Wisconsin Rapids, having been a candidate for congressman from this district in the election a year ago last November. At that time he claimed to be a LaFollette Republican, but was not supported by the state LaFolletto organization.

HOW MEXICO DISARMS.

It is the custom to throw brickbats rather than bouquets at our supposed benighted neighbor, Mexico, but it would seem that in the matter of reduction of armament, which we hear is being discussed somewhere these days, she may be able to give pointers to nations that have the name of being more progressive.

In a current magazine Frazier Hunt tells how President Obregon and his associates have reduced the dangerously unwieldy army without adding to unemployment and relieved the country from a heavy financial burden. A year ago the Mexican army consisted of 77,000 soldiers and 16,000 officers. In addition there was a large force of former revolutionists who joined the army in order to get jobs, bringing the total military establishment up to over 19,000 officers and 93,000 men. More than half the government's income was expended on its maintenance. President Obregon decided it was time to call a halt. Three plans were adopted to reduce the army. Voluntary discharges, forced discharge of incompetents and formation of soldier agriculture colonies. Those who elected to go to the farm colonies were given land, machinery and horses and several months' pay in advance. Pancho Villa and his men are among those who have gone to farming under this plan. The law provides that the soldier farmers must spend a certain time daily in the public schools of their district.

So far as external aggression is concerned Mexico doesn't need any army. The United States has no notion of attacking her and will not allow any European or Asiatic power to do so. As for internal troubles, a better day seems to be dawning. In the past the Mexican army has been necessary to support a rule that rested on force. The present administration is more representative of the people than its predecessors. Mexico has done well to cut down her army. It is encouraging also to note that her never formidable navy has been set to work carrying passengers, freight and mail between the coast towns.

ASK PROSECUTION OF PAPER MILLS

PORTAGE COUNTY GAME CLUB ALLEGES ILLEGAL POLLUTION OF RIVER BY STEVENS POINT MILL

Stevens Point, Dec. 5—The Portage County Fish & Game Protective association at a meeting on Friday evening decided to renew its fight to stop alleged stream pollution in this part of the state by calling upon William J. Morgan, attorney general of Wisconsin, for support in bringing action against at least one paper mill, charging violating of the Wisconsin statutes relating to fish and game.

It is the intention of the association to make the Stevens Point Pulp & Paper company, operating the Strange mill at McDill, the defendant in a suit. The Mosinee mill which it is claimed has polluted the Wisconsin river, is too far away to determine handily whether the dumping of chemicals into the water is permanently stopped, members said and Dr. A. E. MacMillan, former president of the club, advised that the action be started right at home.

Discuss Pollution

The stream pollution subject was again discussed from every angle Friday evening and the consensus of opinion appeared to be that the Wisconsin Conservation commission could not be depended upon to carry the case through. It was then that the attorney general was suggested and a motion which was adopted unanimously provides that a former committee named to bring proceedings correspond with Mr. Morgan relative to building up a case. Waste substance from the Strange mill dumped into the Big Plover river there, is killing the fish life, it is claimed, and the association will back its case by charging violating of division three of section 29.29 of the Wisconsin statutes which read as follows:

The State Law

"Deleterious substances. No person shall cast, deposit, or throw overboard from any boat, vessel or other craft into the waters within the jurisdiction of the state, or deposit or leave upon the ice thereof until it melts, any fish offal; or throw or deposit, or permit to be thrown or deposited, into any waters within the jurisdiction of the state any lime, tanbark, ship ballast, stone, sand slabs, decayed wood, sawdust, saw mill refuse, planing mill shavings or any acids or chemicals or waste or refuse arising from the manufacture of any article of commerce, or any other substance deleterious to fish life other than authorized drainage and sewage from municipalities (Fenalty $50-$1.00.)"

CALIFORNIA BRIDGE SHIPPED IN BY MAIL

Weaverville, Cal.—Parcel post was used recently to bring to Weaverville material for a cable suspension bridge across the Trinity river near here. The bridge is 240 feet long and seven feet wide and nearly all the construction is of steel. All the material, except the flooring, which was cut here, was shipped from Sacramento in the mail. The bridge is designed for pedestrians and saddle horses.

ENGRAVED CARDS FAD WITH RHINE SOLDIERS

Coblenz—Engraved calling cards are a late fad among soldiers of the American forces in Germany. Nearly every soldier has engraved cards with his name and outfit and some even have other cards with their home address in the United States, particularly those who are planning to return to America within the next few months.

A hundred cards and plate, at the present rate of exchange of the dollar for the mark, costs the soldier about 50 or 60 cents in Coblenz stationery shops.

BEACH JONES PLAYERS
Among the new plays to be offered by the Beach-Jones Stock Company next week at the Daly Theatre, are the new opening bill "Mickey" a comedy drama in three acts. "My Irish Cinderella" a play said to be better than "Peg O' My Heart," a new crook comedy "Pal O' Mine" with the scenes laid in a small Ohio town, and the big feature play "Scandal" which had a run of over a year in New York and nearly as long in Chicago.
The Beach-Jones players will be here for only four days this season, and as a consequence will play the four strongest bills in their repertoire. The seats for Thursday will go on sale tomorrow morning at Daly's.

AMERICANS CARE FOR ARMENIAN CHILDREN

Alexandropol, American Soviet Republic—Two Americans have become fathers by adoption of 17,000 homeless Armenian orphans in this far-off city. Milton D. Brown, of Maiden, Mass., and William Martin, of New York, have adopted the waifs on behalf of the American Near East Relief Committee. The young men, who have been carrying on relief work on Armenia for many months, plan to take some of the children to America and to have them educated in American schools.
In a report to his organization at Constantinople, Brown declares that Armenia faces the worst winter within its history. He says famine prevails everywhere and that there is a serious shortage of wood and fuel. He declares that up to now the Bolsheviki have taken good care of the Armenians, but that their resources are running low and the Armenians must turn to others for aid.
Brown says that peace and order prevail throughout Armenia, and that the Soviet government undoubtedly saved the country. It is protecting the Armenian population from the aggressions of their ancient masters, the Turks and the people are allowed to pursue their chosen callings unmolested. Unharassed by war, the people appear to be more content than at any time in recent history. For more than a year no wthe population has been spared massacres at the hands of the Turks, and the country appears to have entered upon a new era of peace and quiet.

AMERICAN SEEDLINGS COVER BATTLEFIELDS

Washington—American seedlings, fast growing into mighty trees, already are beginning to heal the war scarred areas of Europe. Not only are they being nurtured in France and Belgium but in Great Britain also and in Ireland.
The French ministry has ordered that the seedlings shall be located in places readily accessible to main travelled roads, and, if possible, near well known sites "with the view that such future forests shall remain as a monument to the partnership of France and American in the Great War." The same sentiment also prevails in Great Britain which actually lost more forest cover than any other country by the sudden demands of war for materials. In Belgium, in the once beautiful Ardennes where the German axe left nothing standing the beautiful American Douglass fir is lifting its head.

reduction in the estimates wherever proper and possible."
General Dawes concludes his report with this statement:
"In making this report the Director of the Budget will state that his conenction with the bureau is limited as to time, in accordance with an understanding which he had with the President at the time of his appointment. His purpose in making this announcement at this time is to emphasize the fact that his recommendations are made in an impersonal way, with fundamental business principles and their proper preservation in their application to governmental business administration alone in mind."

WOMAN JAILER CAN USE STRONG ARM IF OCCASION DEMANDS

San Angelo, Tex.—Kindness toward prisoners is shown by Mrs. Pat Conway, jailer of the Tom Green county jail in San Angelo, but Mrs. Conway uses force, if necessary, to control her charges. She is the only woman jailer in Texas, so far as known, and one of the few, if not the only woman jailer in the country.
For more than twelve years, Mrs. Conway has had charge of all kind of criminals, including the real "bad men" of the west, cattle rustlers, house breakers, yeggs and petty thieves.
Care is given by Mrs. Conway to her charges and in case one becomes ill, she feeds the prisoner with especially prepared food from her own table. So far as possible, she tries to make her charges forget they are in prison and to make the surroundings as comfortable as possible.
On one occasion, Mrs. Conway was tipped off that a big negro prisoner and others had planned to overpower her and make their escape at meal time. Calmly she began her duties of giving them supper. The negro edged toward the door of the cage and ignored a command to move back into his cell. Mrs. Conway had the bunch of big keys in her hand and with one blow rendered the prisoner unconscious and forced the others back into their cells.
Mrs. Conway has been a resident of San Angelo since the days of old Fort Concho. Her husband, Pat Conway, janitor at the Tom Green county court house, was a soldier at Fort Concho when it was a frontier post.

BRITON PRAISES U. S. ARCHITECTURE

Liverpool—Professor C. H. Reilly, of the School of Architecture, Liverpool University, has just paid a tribute to American architecture which he said was purer and more stable than that of England. "America does not seem to be swept as our country has been by fashions set by individual contemporary architects," he said. "American architecture has been in the last 30 years less self-sufficient and less insular than British."
The American architect deliberately sought his inspiration in the work of the Italian, French and Spanish Renaissance, Professor Reilly said. One had no fear that Fifth Avenue would at any moment be spoiled by a glazed terra-cotta building, with grotesque German detail, yet who could say the same of Oxford street or the Strand, or any leading London thoroughfare?

HOW MEXICO DISARMS.

It is the custom to throw brickbats rather than bouquets at our supposed benighted neighbor, Mexico, but it would seem that in the matter of reduction of armament, which we hear is being discussed somewhere these days, she may be able to give pointers to nations that have the name of being more progressive.

In a current magazine Frazier Hunt tells how President Obregon and his associates have reduced the dangerously unwieldy army without adding to unemployment and relieved the country from a heavy financial burden. A year ago the Mexican army consisted of 77,000 soldiers and 16,000 officers. In addition there was a large force of former revolutionists who joined the army in order to get jobs, bringing the total military establishment up to over 19,000 officers and 93,000 men. More than half the government's income was expended on its maintenance. President Obregon decided it was time to call a halt. Three plans were adopted to reduce the army. Voluntary discharges, forced discharge of incompetents and formation of soldier agriculture colonies. Those who elected to go to the farm colonies were given land, machinery and horses and several months' pay in advance. Pancho Villa and his men are among those who have gone to farming under this plan. The law provides that the soldier farmers must spend a certain time daily in the public schools of their district.

So far as external aggression is concerned Mexico doesn't need any army. The United States has no notion of attacking her and will not allow any European or Asiatic power to do so. As for internal troubles, a better day seems to be dawning. In the past the Mexican army has been necessary to support a rule that rested on force. The present administration is more representative of the people than its predecessors. Mexico has done well to cut down her army. It is encouraging also to note that her never formidable navy has been set to work carrying passengers, freight and mail between the coast towns.

ASK PROSECUTION OF PAPER MILLS

PORTAGE COUNTY GAME CLUB ALLEGES ILLEGAL POLLUTION OF RIVER BY STEVENS POINT MILL

Stevens Point, Dec. 5—The Portage County Fish & Game Protective association at a meeting on Friday evening decided to renew its fight to stop alleged stream pollution in this part of the state by calling upon William J. Morgan, attorney general of Wisconsin, for support in bringing action against at least one paper mill, charging violating of the Wisconsin statutes relating to fish and game.

It is the intention of the association to make the Stevens Point Pulp & Paper company, operating the Strange mill at McDill, the defendant in a suit. The Mosinee mill which it is claimed has polluted the Wisconsin river, is too far away to determine handily whether the dumping of chemicals into the water is permanently stopped, members said and Dr. A. E. MacMillan, former president of the club, advised that the action be started right at home.

Discuss Pollution

The stream pollution subject was again discussed from every angle Friday evening and the consensus of opinion appeared to be that the Wisconsin Conservation commission could not be depended upon to carry the case through. It was then that the attorney general was suggested and a motion which was adopted unanimously provides that a former committee named to bring proceedings correspond with Mr. Morgan relative to building up a case. Waste substance from the Strange mill dumped into the Big Plover river there, is killing the fish life, it is claimed, and the association will back its case by charging violating of division three of section 29.29 of the Wisconsin statutes which read as follows:

The State Law

"Deleterious substances. No person shall cast, deposit, or throw overboard from any boat, vessel or other craft into the waters within the jurisdiction of the state, or deposit or leave upon the ice thereof until it melts, any fish offal; or throw or deposit, or permit to be thrown or deposited, into any waters within the jurisdiction of the state any lime, tanbark, ship ballast, stone, sand slabs, decayed wood, sawdust, saw mill refuse, planing mill shavings or any acids or chemicals or waste or refuse arising from the manufacture of any article of commerce, or any other substance deleterious to fish life other than authorized drainage and sewage from municipalities (Penalty $50-$1.00.)"

CALIFORNIA BRIDGE SHIPPED IN BY MAIL

Weaverville, Cal.—Parcel post was used recently to bring to Weaverville material for a cable suspension bridge across the Trinity river near here. The bridge is 240 feet long and seven feet wide and nearly all the construction is of steel. All the material, except the flooring, which was cut here, was shipped from Sacramento in the mail. The bridge is designed for pedestrians and saddle horses.

ENGRAVED CARDS FAD WITH RHINE SOLDIERS

Coblenz—Engraved calling cards are a late fad among soldiers of the American forces in Germany. Nearly every soldier has engraved cards with his name and outfit and some even have other cards with their home address in the United States, particularly those who are planning to return to America within the next few months.

A hundred cards and plate, at the present rate of exchange of the dollar for the mark, costs the soldier about 50 or 60 cents in Coblenz stationery shops.

OFFER BYRON RELIC AT PUBLIC AUCTION

London—An interesting Byron relic will soon be offered for sale at auction. This is the famous half of a human skull, discovered 20 years ago, finished with a silver band inscribed "skull drinking cup used by Lord Byron at Newstead Abbey."

While living at the Abbey, Byron found a human skull of peculiar whiteness which he concluded had belonged to a friar. He sent the skull to London with orders to cut it in half and to have one half elegantly mounted.

On the return of the cup, Byron instituted a new order at the Abbey and constituted himself "Abbott of the Skull." Members of the order were provided with black gowns and when a chapter was held, the "Skull Cup" was filled with claret and handed round to the members of the order.

FOREMAN FEELS LIKE A NEW MAN

MILWAUKEE MAN WISHES HE HAD TAKEN TANLAC SOONER; HIS TROUBLES NOW GONE

"My health is much better now than it ever was before in my life," said Lawrence C. Malisky well-known foreman for the Cream City Laundry, residing at 875 Warren Ave., Milwaukee, Wis.

"Yes, sir, Tanlac has fixed me up to where I just feel like a young man all the time. But for years before I began taking it my health was mighty bad. I had stomach trouble, had no appetite, and many days I went to work without eating nearly enough to keep me going. Lots of things I ate made me terribly sick. I slept so little at night that I felt tired all the time. I felt I might as well have to give up my work and take a rest. I lost so much weight and got so thin and pale I didn't look like myself at all.

"But I sure have a big appetite now and feel just fine, and I've also gained nearly ten pounds in weight and can sleep all night. I get up in the morning, eat a good breakfast and go to work feeling like a new man. I only wish I had started on Tanlac long before I did, for it would have saved me a lot of money to say nothing of the suffering I endured. I am glad to tell my friends about the good Tanlac has done me, for it is simply wonderful what a good medicine it really is."

Tanlac is sold in Wisconsin Rapids by Otto's Pharmacy and by leading druggists everywhere. (Advertisement)

CLUB PLANS CAMPAIGN AGAINST TUBERCULOSIS

The Wisconsin Rapids Holstein club met Saturday afternoon in the Community room of the First National bank, County Agent Peterson presiding in the absence of the president. Isaac Witter, president of the First National bank, gave a short talk in which he emphasized the importance of pure-bred stock. He stated that a bank would always prefer to lend money for pure bred stock than for the purchase of scrubs.

The presence of bovine tuberluiosis in this section, was discussed, and plans laid for a county wide clean-up campaign. All members of the Wisconsin Rapids Club whose herds have not already been tested for the disease, agreed to have the tests made as soon as possible.

The next meeting of the club will be held in January, at which time new officers will be elected.

HUNGARIAN CROWN HAS HISTORIC PAST

London—The crown of Hungary is undoubtedly worth the struggle made by former Emperor Charles of Austria-Hungary to obtain it, being one of the most ancient and most curious of the royal diadems now in existence.

It is made up of two parts. The first crown was offered by the Pope to Duke Stephen in the year 1000; the second was given by the Emperor Michael to Duke Geisa in 1072.

This latter crown bore a curious inscription which spoke of the Duke as the King of the Turks. Duke Geisa had the two diadems welded together, the Papal crown forming the lower part and the byzantine jewel the upper part.

The dual crown was jealously guarded in the Royal Museum at Budapest, and was only taken from its case for coronation ceremonies. In 1849, in the course of the rising, when Kossuth endeavored to obtain the independence of his country, he came into possesison of the Royal crown which he buried at Orsova when he was obliged to seek safety in flight.

The secret, however, was not well kept and the Austrian government finally discovered the crown in its hiding place.

DISTRIBUTE PICRIC ACID

Birchwood—Fifty-four thousand pounds of picric acid has been distributed among the farmers of Sawyer county at a cost of but $8.50 a hundred pounds. This amount of picric acid is said to be the equivalent to about sixty-five thousand pounds of dynamite in explosive power and represents a saving of about $6,000 to the farmers. The shipment is the last of its kind obtainable from the war department as surplus war material.

The purchasing of large supplies of stumping explosives in all the counties of this section indicate that extensive land clearing operations will follow next spring.

Scout Scribe, ask your Scout Master for permission to bring notice of your meetings and any other items of interest to headquarters and we will run it in the news column under this head of "Scout Corner."

Besure to watch this corner.

AVERT CAVING OF LONDON WEST END SHOPPING CENTER

London—This city has just narrowly escaped a great peril, the possible caving in of Oxford Circus, the shopping center of the West End, says a story circulated by a news agency. The danger of the disaster was known only to contractors and workers underground. They were altering an exit from the Oxford Circus tube station so as to make an entrance into a business building when the contractors discovered a bed of a little known tributary of the Thames River which was covered over when Regent Street was made.

They also found, to their amazement and consternation that they were meeting the direct "lines of vibration" of the two underground tubes, the Central London and the Bakerloo.

The news agency says that they realized that if the excavation continued the whole of Oxford Circus might be literally precipitated underground. There were perilous days and laborious nights occupied in underpinning the buildings above ground and overcoming the side pressure which was being felt.

In place of the shifting sands of the old river bed there was constructed a retaining wall of cement which, it is declared, has made the great shopipng center more secure than at any time since the river flowed down the slopes of the present Regent Street.

MEAT PRICES DOWN

Milwaukee—High meat prices, long a bone of contention among consumers, are coming down rapidly here. In some shops meat prices are very close to the pre-war level, and in some instances prices for first quality meats are actually below pre-war rates.

GREETING CARDS
for Christmas and New Years

This year, as usual, you will have many friends, relatives, and business associates whom you ought to remember, and to whom you will want to send appropriate greetings for Christmas and New Years. It is, of course, out of the question to buy gifts for everybody on your Christmas list—send greeting cards—they are as cordial as a hand-clasp; as heart-warming as a spoken word of greeting. Our Cards reflect your personality, and are cheery messengers of goodwill, the sentiments being especially appropriate for the holiday season.

Personal Greeting Cards

Possibly you have made use of Greeting Cards during previous years, but you have long wished for cards that were original, beautiful, distinctive, and different from the "stock" styles you see everywhere.

The Personal Greeting Cards produced by the Tribune Printing Works are actually personal. Each card is designed especially for the customer in accordance with his own wishes and ideas. If you have a favorite bit of verse or sentiment, bring it in, and we will arrange an appropriate greeting that will reflect your personality.

Or, if you prefer, leave the matter entirely to us, and we will produce a greeting for you that is in good taste for the holidays.

We can plan numberless ideas of a diverse character, and produce a card that you will be proud to send at Christmas time. There is the conventional style of greeting for the conservative, literary person; the strong, masculine, hearty greeting for the hale fellow well met; and the unusual, unique "stunt" for the man or woman who takes pleasure in being different.

Keep up the Christmas Spirit with a message of cheerfulness.

Visiting Cards

An engraved plate and a hundred calling cards make a suitable gift for Christmas. Engraved by experts, beautifully boxed and wrapped, they make a most attractive present. Printed cards, too, in the latest styles and proper sizes.

Engraved Greeting Cards

For those who prefer engraved Christmas and New Years Cards, we have on display a choice assortment of Greeting Cards and Folders. Orders for engraved work cannot be accepted after Dec. 10.

Business Greeting Cards

What will you say for the business favors received this year? Of course, you'll say, "Thank you!" from the bottom of your heart. Those good friends whose orders helped to keep business moving certainly deserve a lot of thanks just at this time.

There is something very cordial and friendly in the custom of sending Christmas and New Years Greeting Cards. It is the nearest thing to a hearty "Merry Christmas" voiced in person.

Tribune Printing Works Cards are different—we add those extra touches that lift them out of the ordinary class into something decidedly original, and entirely appropriate for the Holidays.

To insure having your cards on time this year, may we suggest that you consider placing your order now? It will not be long before our facilities will be taxed to the utmost.

AMERICANS CARE FOR ARMENIAN CHILDREN

Alexandropol, American Soviet Republic—Two Americans have become fathers by adoption of 17,000 homeless Armenian orphans in this far-off city. Milton D. Brown, of Malden, Mass., and William Martin, of New York, have adopted the waifs on behalf of the American Near East Relief Committee. The young men, who have been carrying on relief work on Armenia for many months, plan to take some of the children to America and to have them educated in American schools.
In a report to his organization at Constantinople, Brown declares that Armenia faces the worst winter within its history. He says famine prevails everywhere and that there is a serious shortage of wood and fuel. He declares that up to now the Bolsheviki have taken good care of the Armenians, but that their resources are running low and the Armenians must turn to others for aid.
Brown says that peace and order prevail throughout Armenia, and that the Soviet government undoubtedly saved the country. It is protecting the Armenian population from the aggressions of their ancient masters, the Turks and the people are allowed to pursue their chosen callings unmolested. Unharassed by war, the people appear to be more content than at any time in recent history. For more than a year no wthe population has been spared massacres at the hands of the Turks, and the country appears to have entered upon a new era of peace and quiet.

AMERICAN SEEDLINGS COVER BATTLEFIELDS

Washington—American seedlings, fast growing into mighty trees, already are beginning to heal the war scarred areas of Europe. Not only are they being nurtured in France and Belgium but in Great Britain also and in Ireland.
The French ministry has ordered that the seedlings shall be located in places readily accessible to main travelled roads, and, if possible, near well known sites "with the view that such future forests shall remain as a monument to the partnership of France and American in the Great War." The same sentiment also prevails in Great Britain which actually lost more forest cover than any other country by the sudden demands of war for materials. In Belgium, in the once beautiful Ardennes where the German axe left nothing standing the beautiful American Douglass fir is lifting its head.

reduction in the estimates wherever proper and possible."
General Dawes concludes his report with this statement:
"In making this report the Director of the Budget will state that his connection with the bureau is limited as to time, in accordance with an understanding which he had with the President at the time of his appointment. His purpose in making this announcement at this time is to emphasize the fact that his recommendations are made in an impersonal way, with fundamental business principles and their proper preservation in their application to governmental business administration alone in mind."

WOMAN JAILER CAN USE STRONG ARM IF OCCASION DEMANDS

San Angelo, Tex.—Kindness toward prisoners is shown by Mrs. Pat Conway, jailer of the Tom Green county jail in San Angelo, but Mrs. Conway uses force, if necessary, to control her charges. She is the only woman jailer in Texas, so far as known, and one of the few, if not the only woman jailer in the country.
For more than twelve years, Mrs. Conway has had charge of all kind of criminals, including the real "bad men" of the west, cattle rustlers, house breakers, yeggs and petty thieves.
Care is given by Mrs. Conwny to her charges and in case one becomes ill, she feeds the prisoner with especially prepared food from her own table. So far as possible, she tries to make her charges forget they are in prison and to make the surroundings as comfortable as possible.
On one occasion, Mrs. Conway was tipped off that a big negro prisoner and others had planned to overpower her and make their escape at meal time. Calmly she began her duties of giving them supper. The negro edged toward the door of the cage and ignored a command to move back into his cell. Mrs. Conway had the bunch of big keys in her hand and with one blow rendered the prisoner unconscious and forced the others back into their cells.
Mrs. Conway has been a resident of San Angelo since the days of old Fort Concho. Her husband, Pat Conway, janitor at the Tom Green county court house, was a soldier at Fort Concho when it was a frontier post.

BRITON PRAISES U. S. ARCHITECTURE

Liverpool—Professor C. H. Reilly, of the School of Architecture, Liverpool University, has just paid a tribute to American architecture which he said was purer and more stable than that of England. "America does not seem to be swept as our country has been by fashions set by individual contemporary architects," he said. "American architecture has been in the last 30 years less self-sufficient and less insular than British."
The American architect deliberately sought his inspiration in the work of the Italian, French and Spanish Renaissance, Professor Reilly said. One had no fear that Fifth Avenue would at any moment be spoiled by a glazed terra-cotta building, with grotesque German detail, yet who could say the same of Oxford street or the Strand, or any leading London thoroughfare?

Hard Times Party—

One of the jolliest social events of the season was the Hard Times Party given Saturday evening by Miss Cicily Damon, 330 Eighth avenue south, who entertained a number of young people at a hard times party. All the furniture was removed from the living room, dining room and bed rooms and replaced with kitchen chairs, rag rugs and a davenport made from two dry goods boxes and a table leaf. The house was lighted with kerosene lamps, and a lantern served as a porch light. The guests began arriving at about a quarter past eight, and the "more they came the worse they looked" and when the assemblage was complete it was a scream. At nine o'clock the company was served with dry toast, on tin plates, and water in tin cups. The evening was spent with music, games and contests.

Cards were passed to each one having different stunts they were requested to do.

The prize actor was Miss Irene Dyer, who surprised those present with some unusualy clever acts of contortion. Miss Dyer also proved a clever Fortune Teller.

A pop corn contest was won by Miss Flora Hessler. Miss Dorothy Normington and Ben Crosby were winners of a Rope slipping contest.

Just before the guests left for their homes very delicious refreshments were served.

THEATRES

PALACE THEATER

One of the most thrilling incidents ever screened is that showing a man of wealth driving his motor car over an enbankment fifty feet high, resulting not only in his own death, but also that of the man accompanying him. This is only one scene of many almost as striking which make up the Cosmopolitan production of "The Wild Goose," released by Paramount, which will be shown at the Palace theater for two days beginning Wednesday next.

The story deals with the love triangle treated from a new and novel standpoint. Diana Manners is the wife of an architect and she becomes infatuated with another man. When Hastings, who is Manners' friend learns that his own wife secretly loves Manners, and that the latter's wife has eloped with the other man, he follows them in a motor car and after forcing the man into his automobile, he deliberately drives over the cliff, thereby serving a double purpose—to give his wife freedom from him and to save the honor of his friend.

Mary MacLaren plays the part of the romantic minded Diana, while Holmes E. Herbert is seen as the husband. Joseph Smiley has the role of Hastings, who brings peace to all concerned by slaying himself and the rounder who has been the cause of trouble. Dorothy Bernard has a delightful role and Norman Kerry, a popular player, is seen as the heavy. The picture is based on Gouverneur Morris' story of "The Wild Goose," the sale of which in novel form, was enormous.

IDEAL THEATER

Kalamazoo, Mich., is the birthplace of Edna Ferber.

The famous authoress, who overcame almost insurmountable difficulties in reaching her present literary heights, began her journalistic career as a reporter on the Appleton Daily Crescent, of Appleton, Wis., at the age of 17. Later her newspaper work took her to the Milwaukee Journal and the Chicago Tribune. It was at this time that she attracted national attention by her realistic, vivid short stories, which were appearing in different magazines.

"Fanny Herself," is considered by many, her greatest achievement. Other notable successes are "Buttered Side Down," "Roast Beef Medium," "Emma McChesney & Co." "Cheerful—by Request."

Realism is the vital element in all Edna Ferber's works. Her characters breathe and feel and love—they are human. She paints life as she sees it—not as it should be. She is possessed of that magic gift of knowing the human heart. Under the skin lies humanity, believes Miss Ferber. Laughter and tears run the gamut of emotions in her stories.

Perhaps her greatest forte is the portrayal of the true small-town family life, with all its tenderness, its devotion and sorrows.

Edna Ferber has almost lived "Fanny Herself." She knows the family hearthstone. She knows Fanny, the sister, who sacrifices all for an ungrateful brother. She knows the locale—a little town in Wisconsin. She knows her characters. She knows their loves—their sorrows—their moods. The story is a classic.

"Fanny Herself," has been interpreted on the screen by Mabel Julienne Scott, heading an all star cast in "No Woman Knows," a drama of love and devotion, which comes to the Ideal Theater on Tuesday and Wednesday as a Universal-Jewel Production.

MICHIGAN LETTER MEN STRONG FOR "HURRY UP" YOST

CONDEMN ALUMNI GROUPS FOR UNWARRANTED CRITICISM OF MICHIGAN FOOTBALL COACH

Chicago—Staunch support of Fielding H. Yost, football coach at the University of Michigan for twenty years, is asserted in an endorsement of the Michigan mentor passed by the "M" club, an association of Wolverine letter men who voice the highest praise and condemn criticism of the famous "Hurry Up" coach, made by some alumni.

Unfounded rumors, which reach the ears of a Michigan alumni association, were responsible for the condemnation of the organization, the "M" club resolution said. These rumors were investigated by the club, as a result of which, the "M" men said, they found that Coach Yost had worked faithfully for the best interests of the 1921 football squad.

Men Employed

"The 1921 football squad was composed mostly of employed men, who are earning their education. Seventy per cent of the men asked to report for football work this fall are employed either part or full time," the resolution said. Of the eighteen players who took part in the games, thirteen are working. This is one of the obstacles which Coach Yost was forced to overcome.

"The criticism of Yost was unfair and coming at a time when it did, immediately before the Wisconsin game, it might have forced the team to play even a more ragged game than it did." the resolution said.

"The assault against Coach Yost is an insult to his integrity and his interests in the university. Had the alumni associations taken the time to acquaint themselves with the true situation and the handicap under which Coach Yost was laboring the criticism would have been stamped out," the resolution said.

Proud of Record

Michigan alumni point with pride to an indomitable spirit which enabled Yost's men to stop the fast Wisconsin team and later beat Illinois which to some extent washed the Ohio mire off their rugged features. Any team in the country has always been proud to beat Michigan, the alumni declare, and point to an athletic record on the gridiron, track, diamond, basketball and tennis courts which has a decided list to the winning side.

The football figures against Ohio show eighteen games played of which Michigan has won thirteen and lost three. Two have been ties. The Illini have been humbled six times to a pair of victories by the Urbana men; Chicago has come on top only six times to eleven for Michigan. Wisconsin twice to Michigan's five, Iowa once to two Michigan victories, Indiana nothing to four, Northwestern two to four and Purdue two to five. Michigan's grand percentage is better than seventy.

There have been some great individual performers, too, produced on the Ferry Field Gridiron. Seven Yostmen have been selected on All-American teams, almost half of all chosen west of the Ohio river. Heston, Schulz, Benbrook, Wells, Craig, Maulbetch and Steketee make up the list. Two—Heston and Schulz—are on the All-Time All-America team.

Lead in Other Sports

In baseball, during the past four years, the Wolverines have turned in three out of four Big Ten Championships. In all Big Ten competition Michigan has won one hundred and forty-two games, tied three and lost forty-eight. Out of sixteen Western Conference track meets in which Michigan has participated, the wearers of the Maize and Blue have been triumphant ten times, and have been on the major end of the score in twenty-six out of thirty-one dual meets. Hahn, Craig, Garrels and Johnson have been names to conjure with, east and west, while the Wolverine milers used to make history at the Pennsylvania relay games.

Michigan took up basketball later than most of the other conference teams, but come to the front rapidly. The tennis and soccer, too, the Maise and Blue have always proved strong contenders and the whole Michigan athletic record has given alumni such fervor that whenever a gathering in the great Ferry Field stadium rises to sing the Yellow and the Blue, there is conviction in every heart that there is such a thing as Michigan might and that Michigan spirit should triumph.

PREDICTS NEW ERA

Janesville—A new era of education especially of children, through full utilization of every finesse of sense is seen by J. T. Hooper, superintendent of the State Normal school for Blind, Janesville. He made the prediction before the local Rotary club, that the time will come when the senses of touch and smell will be as completely used in educating the young as the eyes and ears as the means of communicating knowledge to the mind.

PENN STATE WINS FROM WASHINGTON

BEZDEK CREW HAS NO DIFFICULTY WITH SUCCESSORS TO GIL DOBIE'S CHAMPIONSHIP ELEVENS

Seattle—Penn State college's football team came out of the east and defeated the University of Washington eleven, 21 to 7, in the university stadium here Saturday. The Sundodger linesmen were unable to fathom the easterners' attack until the closing moments of the third period and the fast Penn State backs gained almost at will, using a varied attack.

It was not until Penn State had scored three touchdowns and a total score of 21 points and the third period was well advanced that Washington took the actual offensive. On the kickoff, after Penn's last goal, Capt. Ray Eckmann caried the ball to midfield on a long straight run that brought the spectators to their feet with a roar. The Sundodgers had their blood up and smashed irresistibly toward the goal, three, four and five yards at a time. Nearly every play was through the line. Eckmann, who had carried the ball repeatedly took it over from the one yard line for Washington's only touchdown.

Penn State scored early in the first period, Wilson, Redinger and Killinger carrying the ball down from kickoffs in an onslaught that halted at non-resistance. Knabb went over the last mark from the one yard line and Killinger kicked goal. Sumamries:

MORSE STARTS HOME

Havre, Dec. 5—Charles W. Morse was escorted to the steamer Paris today by ranking police officer Italiani. The boat is scheduled to leave tonight for Milwaukee Zionists is $100,000.

HOPE FOR STRONG TEAM AT PURDUE FOR NEXT SEASON

Lafayette, Ind.—Purdue University will be ready in another year or two to retrieve its lost prestige on the gridiron. This is the opinion of athletic authorities here. Although in the number of games won the past season was disappointing followers of the team were cheered by the fighting spirit, which, they declare, was characteristic of Purdue teams of a decade ago, but which has been noticeably absent in recent years.

Although twelve men will be lost to the football squad by graduation there will be a number of veterans back next year and with the recruits from this year's freshman team, it is expected there will be little difficulty in rounding up an experienced eleven. Five of the twelve who will get sheepskins were regulars this year.

Ferd Birk is one of the stars who will be lost. Birk, during his three years on the team, has gained fame as a tackler and center. Capt. "Zeb" Carman is another regular who will leave. Carman has held down an end position for two years.

Other regulars to go are Ray Miller, end; E. B. Wagner, halfback; and J. E. Meeker, fullback. Some of the second string men played in a number of games and will be keenly missed. They are Bob Watson, E. S. Rate, W. L. Spencer, "Shorty" Macklin, C. E. Israel, J. C. Kepple and C. D. Merrill.

Milwaukee—The Palestine Foundation fund has now reached the $19,000 mark and there are still a few days left for solicitation. The quota for Milwaukee Zionists is $100,000.

"MAKE BUSINESS HERE BETTER; TRADE HERE"

"One of the most far reaching things which the people of this community can do by way of stimulating local business conditions, both for the balance of the year and throughout 1922," says W. J. Taylor, Cashier of the First National Bank, "would be to see that every possible dollar is spent here at home during the holiday season and throughout the New Year.

"This is not a new subject and we are apt to become hardened to 'trade at home' appeals. But we should understand that the dollar which is spent in local stores is in turn expended locally, and indirectly, that dollar in some part, returns again to the spender.

"Our local merchants have bought their holiday stocks carefully and offer an excellent selection at reasonable prices. If there is something special which a buyer desires, local dealers will gladly send away for such things and have them forwarded promptly.

"The big things which every man and woman should remember is that we are all interested in making this town a better town, in seeing it grow, in promoting good business conditions with a friendly spirit behind our every endeavor.

"Let's trade at home during the Christmas season and all through the year to come!"

Stationery Gift Boxes

There are many stationery gift boxes. Most of them are sold because of the box rather than for the quality of the paper within the box.

There are people, and the number is constantly increasing, who regard the paper of primary importance, realizing that it is the paper that carries the message and by which the writer is largely judged. It is the paper, therefore, that should be first considered in selecting a gift box.

There is no paper better than Old Hampshire. It identifies the user as one of discriminating taste and the giver as one of good judgment.

Old Hampshire Gift Boxes are neat, attractive, and dignified—containers in keeping with their contents. Old Hampshire Vellum boxes are covered with brown, lettered in gold and embossed. The paper and envelopes are ribbon tied. Old Hampshire Bond boxes are covered with green, lettered in gold and embossed. The paper and envelopes are banded.

Old Hampshire Bond has long been known as "The Stationery of a Gentleman," the Regent, Royal Club and Imperial or Semi-Business being the sizes quite generally accepted. Old Hampshire Vellum in the same sizes is equally popular. Each carries the watermark "Old Hampshire"; both are sturdily constructed, built with masculine strength, mixed with the ingredients of dignity and refinement and surface finished to please the most exacting.

On all orders for Christmas Gifts, we will imprint any set of initials or name in gold, blue, or black ink free of charge. Orders for prompt delivery should be placed early. Telephone or call—samples are on display at our office.

OFFER BYRON RELIC AT PUBLIC AUCTION

London—An interesting Byron relic will soon be offered for sale at auction. This is the famous half of a human skull, discovered 20 years ago, finished with a silver band inscribed "skull drinking cup used by Lord Byron at Newstead Abbey."

While living at the Abbey, Byron found a human skull of peculiar whiteness which he concluded had belonged to a friar. He sent the skull to London with orders to cut it in half and to have one half elegantly mounted.

On the return of the cup, Byron instituted a new order at the Abbey and constituted himself "Abbott of the Skull." Members of the order were provided with black gowns and when a chapter was held, the "Skull Cup" was filled with claret and handed round to the members of the order.

FOREMAN FEELS LIKE A NEW MAN

MILWAUKEE MAN WISHES HE HAD TAKEN TANLAC SOONER; HIS TROUBLES NOW GONE

"My health is much better now than it ever was before in my life," said Lawrence C. Malisky, well-known foreman for the Cream City Laundry, residing at 873 Warren Ave., Milwaukee, Wis.

"Yes, sir, Tanlac has fixed me up to where I just feel like working all the time. But for years before I began taking it my health was mighty bad. I had stomach trouble, had no appetite, and many days I went to work without eating hardly enough to keep me going. Lots of things I ate made me terribly sick. I slept so little at night that I felt tired all the time, and often thought I would have to give up my work and take a rest. I lost so much weight and got so thin and pale I didn't look like myself at all.

"But I sure have a big appetite now, and feel just fine, and I've also gained nearly ten pounds in weight and can sleep all night. I get up in the morning, eat a good breakfast and go to work feeling like a new man. I only wish I had started on Tanlac long before I did, for it would have saved me a lot of money to say nothing of the suffering I endured. I am glad to tell my friends about the good Tanlac has done me, for it is simply wonderful what a good medicine it really is."

Tanlac is sold in Wisconsin Rapids by Otto's Pharmacy and by leading druggists everywhere.—Advertisement

The Wisconsin Rapids Holstein club met Saturday afternoon in the Community room of the First National bank, County Agent Peterson presiding in the absence of the president. Isaac Witter, president of the First National bank, gave a short talk in which he emphasized the importance of pure-bred stock. He stated that a bank would always prefer to lend money for pure bred stock than for the purchase of scrubs.

The presence of bovine tuberlulosis in this section, was discussed, and plans laid for a county wide clean-up campaign. All members of the Wisconsin Rapids Club whose herds have not already been tested for the disease, agreed to have the tests made as soon as possible.

The next meeting of the club will be held in January, at which time new officers will be elected.

HUNGARIAN CROWN HAS HISTORIC PAST

London—The crown of Hungary is undoubtedly worth the struggle made by former Emperor Charles of Austria-Hungary to obtain it, being one of the most ancient and most curious of the royal diadems now in existence.

It is made up of two parts. The first crown was offered by the Pope to Duke Stephen in the year 1000; the second was given by the Emperor Michael to Duke Geisa in 1072.

This latter crown bore a curious inscription which spoke of the Duke as the King of the Turks. Duke Geisa had the two diadems welded together, the Papal crown forming the lower part and the byzantine jewel the upper part.

The dual crown was jealously guarded in the Royal Museum at Budapest, and was only taken from its case for coronation ceremonies. In 1849, in the course of the rising, when Kossuth endeavored to obtain the independence of his country, he came into possesison of the Royal crown which he buried at Orsova when he was obliged to seek safety in flight.

The secret, however, was not well kept and the Austrian government finally discovered the crown in its hiding place.

DISTRIBUTE PICRIC ACID

Birchwood—Fifty-four thousand pounds of picric acid has been distributed among the farmers of Sawyer county at a cost of but $8.50 a hundred pounds. This amount of picric acid is said to be the equivalent to about sixty-five thousand pounds of dynamite in explosive power and represents a saving of about $6,000 to the farmers. The shipment is the last of its kind obtainable from the war department as surplus war material.

The purchasing of large supplies of stumping explosives in all the counties of this section indicate that extensive land clearing operations will follow next spring.

Boy Scouts

Hello Boys! Glad to meet you, come in and make me a visit. Give me the three finger salute, tell me your name, what troop you belong to, and some of the good things your troop is planning to do.

Wish I could announce to you a program of contests, district meetings, public good turns, advancement charges, intertroop games; some hikes and a million other things which scouts like to do but first I must get acquainted, and give the council committee time to get together for they have some wonderful ideas and great things which they the going to put across for you boys. Boys, help your Scout Master get things going about "forty miles an hour" and then you will be ready for the large program the committee is working out for you.

Scout Scribe, ask your Scout Master for permission to bring notice of your meetings and any other items of interest to headquarters and we will run it in the news column under this head of "Scout Corner."

Besure to watch this corner.

Yours truly

AVERT CAVING OF LONDON WEST END SHOPPING CENTER

London—This city has just narrowly escaped a great peril, the possible caving in of Oxford Circus, the shopping center of the West End, says a story circulated by a news agency. The danger of the disaster was known only to contractors and workers underground. They were altering an exit from the Oxford Circus tube station so as to make an entrance into a business building when the contractors discovered a bed of a little known tributary of the Thames River which was covered over when Regent Street was made.

They also found, to their amazement and consternation that they were meeting the direct "lines of vibration" of the two underground tubes, the Central London and the Bakerloo.

The news agency says that they realized that if the excavation continued the whole of Oxford Circus might be literally precipitated underground. There were perilous days and laborious nights occupied in underpinning the buildings above ground and overcoming the side pressure which was being felt.

In place of the shifting sands of the old river bed there was constructed a retaining wall of cement which, it is declared, has made the great shopping center more secure than at any time since the river flowed down the slopes of the present Regent Street.

MEAT PRICES DOWN

Milwaukee—High meat prices, long a bone of contention among consumers, are coming down rapidly here. In some shops meat prices are very close to the pre-war level, and in some instances prices for first quality meats are actually below pre-war rates.

GREETING CARDS

for Christmas and New Years

This year, as usual, you will have many friends, relatives, and business associates whom you ought to remember, and to whom you will want to send appropriate greetings for Christmas and New Years. It is, of course, out of the question to buy gifts for everybody on your Christmas list—send greeting cards—they are as cordial as a hand-clasp; as heart-warming as a spoken word of greeting. Our Cards reflect your personality, and are cheery messengers of goodwill, the sentiments being especially appropriate for the holiday season.

Personal Greeting Cards

Possibly you have made use of Greeting Cards during previous years, but you have long wished for cards that were original, beautiful, distinctive, and different from the "stock" styles you see everywhere.

The Personal Greeting Cards produced by the Tribune Printing Works are actually personal. Each card is designed especially for the customer in accordance with his own wishes and ideas. If you have a favorite bit of verse or sentiment, bring it in, and we will arrange an appropriate greeting that will reflect your personality.

Or, if you prefer, leave the matter entirely to us, and we will produce a greeting for you that is in good taste for the holidays.

We can plan numberless ideas of a diverse character, and produce a card that you will be proud to send at Christmas time. There is the conventional style of greeting for the conservative, literary person; the strong, masculine, hearty greeting for the hale fellow well met; and the unusual, unique "stunt" for the man or woman who takes pleasure in being different.

Keep up the Christmas Spirit with a message of cheerfulness.

An engraved plate and a hundred calling cards make a suitable gift for Christmas. Engraved by experts, beautifully boxed and wrapped, they make a most attractive present. Printed cards, too, in the latest styles and proper sizes.

Engraved Greeting Cards

For those who prefer engraved Christmas and New Years Cards, we have on display a choice assortment of Greeting Cards and Folders. Orders for engraved work cannot be accepted after Dec. 10.

Business Greeting Cards

What will you say for the business favors received this year? Of course, you'll say, "Thank you!" from the bottom of your heart. Those good friends whose orders helped to keep business moving certainly deserve a lot of thanks just at this time.

There is something very cordial and friendly in the custom of sending Christmas and New Years Greeting Cards. It is the nearest thing to a hearty "Merry Christmas" voiced in person.

Tribune Printing Works Cards are different—we add those extra touches that lift them out of the ordinary class into something decidedly original, and entirely appropriate for the Holidays.

To insure having your cards on time this year, may we suggest that you consider placing your order now? It will not be long before our facilities will be taxed to the utmost.

THE GIFT CAROL -- By Marjorie Howe Dixon

Around we swiftly dance
About the tree so tall
Around we gayly prance
There are Christmas gifts for all.

Oh here's a doll
For little Dell:
And so of course
There is a horse,
A nobby hob
For brother Bob,
A mummy tumbler
There goes the drum
And horn so shrill
For Billie Bill,
A kangaroo
A circus zoo
A jumping clown
For Betty Brown.
Around we swiftly dance
About the tree so tall
Around we gayly prance
There are Christmas gifts for all.

For Nancy Ann
A feather fan,
A purse, a ring
And pearly string,
And dear old Dad,
Why aren't you glad?
Just look and see
What's on the tree,
Suspenders, bags,
A neck tie too,
A hat of fur
A brand new hell.
Oh let us sing
And form a ring—
Around we swiftly dance
About the tree so tall
Around we gayly prance
There are Christmas gifts for all.

But now look here
For Mother, dear,
A parasol,
A pretty shawl,
And don't forget,
The breakfast set.
Come children four
And look for more.
This candy cane
So straight and vain,
Its color loud
Is much too proud,
Too gaud, too pure,
To last, I'm sure.
Around we swiftly dance
About the tree so tall
Around we gayly prance
There are Christmas gifts for all.

SOCIETY News of Interest to Women EVENTS

Hard Times Party—

One of the jolliest social events of the season was the Hard Times Party given Saturday evening by Miss Cicily Damon, 330 Eighth avenue south, who entertained a number of young people at a hard times party. All the furniture was removed from the living room, dining room and bed rooms and replaced with kitchen chairs, rag rugs and a davenport made from two dry goods boxes and a table leaf. The house was lighted with kerosene lamps, and a lantern served as a porch light. The guests began arriving at about a quarter past eight, and the "more they came the worse they looked" and when the assemblage was complete it was a scream. At nine o'clock the company was served with dry toast, on tin plates, and water in tin cups. The evening was spent with music, games and contests.

Cards were passed to each one having different stunts they were requested to do.

The prize actor was Miss Irene Dyer, who surprised those present with some unusualy clever acts of contortion. Miss Dyer also proved a clever Fortune Teller.

A pop corn contest was won by Miss Flora Hessler. Miss Dorothy Normington and Ben Crosby were winners of a Rope slipping contest.

Just before the guests left for their homes very delicious refreshments were served.

THEATRES

PALACE THEATER

One of the most thrilling incidents ever screened is that showing a man of wealth driving his motor car over an enbankment fifty feet high, resulting not only in his own death, but also that of the man accompanying him. This is only one scene of many almost as striking which make up the Cosmopolitan production of "The Wild Goose," released by Paramount, which will be shown at the Palace theater for two days beginning Wednesday next.

The story deals with the love triangle treated from a new and novel standpoint. Diana Manners is the wife of an architect and she becomes infatuated with another man. When Hastings, who is Manners' friend learns that his own wife secretly loves Manners, and that the latter's wife has eloped with the other man, he follows them in a motor car and after forcing the man into his automobile, he deliberately drives over the cliff, thereby serving a double purpose—to give his wife freedom from him and to save the honor of his friend.

Mary MacLaren plays the part of the romantic minded Diana, while Holmes E. Herbert is seen as the husband. Joseph Smiley has the role of Hastings, who brings peace to all concerned by slaying himself and the rounder who has been the cause of trouble. Dorothy Bernard has a delightful role and Norman Kerry, a popular player, is seen as the heavy. The picture is based on Gouverneur Morris' story of "The Wild Goose," the sale of which in novel form, was enormous.

IDEAL THEATER

Kalamazoo, Mich., is the birthplace of Edna Ferber.

The famous authoress, who overcame almost insurmountable difficulties in reaching her present literary heights, began her journalistic career as a reporter on the Appleton Daily Crescent, of Appleton, Wis., at the age of 17. Later her newspaper work took her to the Milwaukee Journal and the Chicago Tribune. It was at this time that she attracted national attention by her realistic, vivid short stories, which were appearing in different magazines.

"Fanny Herself," is considered by many, her greatest achievement. Other notable successes are "Buttered Side Down," "Roast Beef Medium," "Emma McChesney & Co." "Cheerful—by Request."

Realism is the vital element in all Edna Ferber's works. Her characters breathe and feel and love—they are human. She paints life as she sees it—not as it should be. She is possessed of that magic gift of knowing the human heart. Under the skin lies humanity, believes Miss Ferber. Laughter and tears run the gamut of emotions in her stories.

Perhaps her greatest forte is the portrayal of the true small-town family life, with all its tenderness, its devotion and sorrows.

Edna Ferber has almost lived "Fanny Herself." She knows the family hearthstone. She knows Fanny, the sister, who sacrifices all for an ungrateful brother. She knows the locale—a little town in Wisconsin. She knows her characters. She knows their loves—their sorrows—their moods. The story is a classic.

"Fanny Herself," has been interpreted on the screen by Mabel Julienne Scott, heading an all star cast in "No Woman Knows," a drama of love and devotion, which comes to the Ideal Theater on Tuesday and Wednesday as a Universal-Jewel Production.

Games for Children at Christmas

By Marjorie Howe Dixon

At Christmas time it seems especially appropriate to resurrect all the old games, that have amused children for ages past. Some of them are best played out-of-doors, while others must be played either within or without.

One of these, a general favorite, is mentioned in one of the Christmas celebrations in Dicken's "Pickwick Papers," and still earlier in Washington Irving's "Sketch Book." This is "Blind Man's Buff." Every one is so familiar with this good old game which will never lose its ability to amuse, so that the rules for playing it need not be given here.

"Hide and Seek" is another of these old "standbys." One variation here. We children called it "Cheese It." One child was "It." At goal he covered his eyes while he counted ten calling out "Cheese It" as the end of ten. He then opened his eyes and anyone he saw moving had to return to goal. When all had disappeared from sight he hunted until he found one of them, whom he must precede to goal. This child then became "It" and the game continued as before.

This game of course, is equally interesting whether played indoors or out. "Fox and Geese," another old favorite, is best played out in the snow. A large circle is trampled in the snow, with two diameters crossing it at right angles. The center thus formed is "Safety." The Fox is chosen and is "It" as in other games. He must catch one of the "geese." The other children, the "geese," run around and across the circle, no one leaving the beaten paths, of course. Any one standing at "Safety" cannot be tagged, but he must leave at once on the approach of another "goose." Once a goose is tagged, he becomes "fox" and must chase the others in turn.

Several of the old games involve running which makes them just right for out-of-doors in cold weather. Where there is a large group of children, the ancient pastime "Run, Sheep, Run" will be found lively and full of interest.

The children are evenly divided, each group selecting a captain. Then there is held a secret consultation of each side with its respective captain, in which signals are arranged. Then one group with its captain leaves for hiding. They travel for some distance, marking their course with arrows in chalk on side walks, fences, or buildings. When they are safely hidden, their captain returns to the other group. The second group starts out to find them, guided by the arrows. As they continue, the captain of the hidden children, calls signals which indicate how near the pursuers are approaching. When he thinks the pursuers are far enough from the goal, he calls, "Run, Sheep, Run!" The hidden group then run into goal while the others try to arrive first. If they do arrive first, it then becomes their turn to hide.

There is something so fascinating about this game that children will play it for days running.

Young people of high school age are all familiar with "Last Couple Out." This is often played in summer but can be just as interesting in winter. Where a barn dance was being held this game could be easily managed indoors, just so there was plenty of space in which to play.

For those who may never have indulged in this sport the simple rules are here given. Boys and girls line up as for a march, in pairs. The front couple calls, "Last Couple Out!" The end couple of the line separate and run for position at the front of the line. The couple there try to tag them before they reach it. Failing this, they drop out of the game. If they do tag the last couple before they reach the front position those two then drop out of the game. Thus the game continues until one couple is left triumphant!

For indoors, one form of charades is called "New York." Here two groups are necessary, each with a captain. One group leaves the room, and selecting a name, or a word of several syllables, arranges to act out the syllables in sections. For instance take the name "Newfoundland." The first syllable can be handled in dialogue in which the word "new" is mentioned prominently. The second can be done in pantomine, a person "finding" something. The last, "land" can be discovered in pantomine.

Having decided on all the details, the group returns to the room where the others are waiting. The captains then carry through this dialogue.

First, "Here we come!"
Second, "Where from?"
First, "New York."
Second, "What's your trade?"
First, "Lemonade."
Second, "Give us some."

This is the signal for to start the dialogue, or pantomine. The opposite group try to guess the word which if they do they immediately try to catch or capture the first group. It is now the second group's turn to pantomine.

If one starts to think of these old games for use with children at Christmas several more will occur to him. For instance "Farmer in the Dell," and "Duck on the Rock" and many, many more. Games in which all can enter seem the best, for that brings up the Spirit of Christmas, a jolly good fellowship, a happy companionship of old and young together.

Prolific Sturgeon.

The Russian sturgeon, known as beluga or uhsco, is very large. It has been known to grow to the length of 20 to 25 feet and to weigh 3,000 pounds. At spawning time a female produces from 2,000,000 to 3,000,000 eggs, constituting from one fifth to one third of the entire weight of the fish.

MICHIGAN LETTER MEN STRONG FOR "HURRY UP" YOST

CONDEMN ALUMNI GROUPS FOR UNWARRANTED CRITICISM OF MICHIGAN FOOTBALL COACH

Chicago—Staunch support of Fielding H. Yost, football coach at the University of Michigan for twenty years, is asserted in an endorsement of the Michigan mentor passed by the "M" club, an association of Wolverine letter men who voice the highest praise and condemn criticism of the famous "Hurry Up" coach, made by some alumni.

Unfounded rumors, which reach the ears of a Michigan alumni association, were responsible for the condemnation of the organization, the "M" club resolution said. These rumors were investigated by the club, as a result of which, the "M" men said, they found that Coach Yost had worked faithfully for the best interests of the 1921 football squad.

Men Employed

"The 1921 football squad was composed mostly of employed men, who are earning their education. Seventy per cent of the men asked to report for football work this fall are employed either part or full time," the resolution said. Of the eighteen players who took part in the games, thirteen are working. This is one of the obstacles which Coach Yost was forced to overcome.

"The criticism of Yost was unfair and coming at a time when it did, immediately before the Wisconsin game, it might have forced the team to play even a more ragged game than it did," the resolution said.

"The assault against Coach Yost is an insult to his integrity and his interests in the university. Had the alumni associations taken the time to acquaint themselves with the true situation and the handicap under which Coach Yost was laboring the criticism would have been stamped out," the resolution said.

Proud of Record

Michigan alumni point with pride to an indomitable spirit which enabled Yost's men to stop the fast Wisconsin team and later beat Illinois which to some extent washed the Ohio mire off their rugged features. Any team in the country has always been proud to beat Michigan, the alumni declare, and point to an athletic record on the gridiron, track, diamond, basketball and tennis courts which has a decided list to the winning side.

The football figures against Ohio show eighteen games played of which Michigan has won thirteen and lost three. Two have been ties. The Illini have been humbled six times to a pair of victories by the Urbana men; Chicago has come on top only six times to eleven for Michigan, Wisconsin twice to Michigan's five, Iowa once to two Michigan victories, Indiana nothing to four, Northwestern two to four and Purdue two to five. Michigan's grand percentage is better than seventy.

There have been some great individual performers, too, produced on the Ferry Field Gridiron. Seven Yostmen have been selected on All-American teams, almost half of all chosen west of the Ohio river. Heston, Schulz, Benbrook, Wells, Craig, Maulbetch and Steketee make up the list. Two—Heston and Schulz—are on the All-Time All-America team.

Lead in Other Sports

In baseball, during the past four years, the Wolverines have turned in three out of four Big Ten Championships. In all Big Ten competition Michigan has won one hundred and forty-two games, tied three and lost forty-eight. Out of sixteen Western Conference track meets in which Michigan has participated, the wearers of the Maize and Blue have been triumphant ten times, and have been on the major end of the score in twenty-six out of thirty-one dual meets. Hahn, Craig, Garrels and Johnson have been names to conjure with, east and west, while the Wolverine milers used to make history at the Pennsylvania relay games.

Michigan took up basketball later than most of the other conference teams, but come to the front rapidly. The tennis and soccer, too, the Maize and Blue have always proved strong contenders and the whole Michigan athletic record has given alumni such fervor that whenever a gathering in the great Ferry Field stadium rises to sing the Yellow and the Blue, there is conviction in every heart that there is such a thing as Michigan might and that Michigan spirit should triumph.

PREDICTS NEW ERA

Janesville—A new era of education especially of children, through full utilization of every finesse of sense is seen by J. T. Hooper, superintendent of the State Normal school for Blind, Janesville. He made the prediction before the local Rotary club, that the time will come when the senses of touch and smell will be as completely used in educating the young as the eyes and ears as the means of communicating knowledge to the mind.

PENN STATE WINS FROM WASHINGTON

BEZDEK CREW HAS NO DIFFICULTY WITH SUCCESSORS TO GIL DOBIE'S CHAMPIONSHIP ELEVENS

Seattle—Penn State college's football team came out of the east and defeated the University of Washington eleven, 21 to 7, in the university stadium here Saturday. The Sundodger linesmen were unable to fathom the easterners' attack until the closing moments of the third period and the fast Penn State backs gained almost at will, using a varied attack.

It was not until Penn State had scored three touchdowns and a total score of 21 points and the third period was well advanced that Washington took the actual offensive. On the kickoff, after Penn's last goal, Capt. Ray Eckmann caried the ball to midfield on a long straight run that brought the spectators to their feet with a roar. The Sundodgers had their blood up and smashed irresistibly toward the goal, three, four and five yards at a time. Nearly every play was through the line. Eckmann, who had carried the ball repeatedly took it over from the one yard line for Washington's only touchdown.

Penn State scored early in the first period, Wilson, Redinger and Killinger carrying the ball down from kickoffs in an onslaught that halted at non-resistance. Knabb went over the last mark from the one yard line and Killinger kicked goal. Sumamries:

MORSE STARTS HOME

Havre, Dec. 5—Charles W. Morse was escorted to the steamer Paris today by ranking police officer Italiani. The boat is scheduled to leave tonight.

HOPE FOR STRONG TEAM AT PURDUE FOR NEXT SEASON

Lafayette, Ind.—Purdue University will be ready in another year or two to retrieve its lost prestige on the gridiron. This is the opinion of athletic authorities here. Although in the number of games won the past season was disappointing ,followers of the team were cheered by the fighting spirit, which, they declare, was characteristic of Purdue teams of a decade ago, but which has been noticeably absent in recent years.

Although twelve men will be lost to the football squad by graduation there will be a number of veterans back next year and with the recruits from this year's freshman team, it is expected there will be little difficulty in rounding up an experienced eleven. Five of the twelve who will get sheepskins were regulars this year.

Ferd Birk is one of the stars who will be lost. Birk, during his three years on the team, has gained fame as a tackler and center. Capt. "Zeb" Carman is another regular who will leave. Carman has held down an end position for two years.

Other regulars to go are Ray Miller, end; E. B. Wagner, halfback; and J. E. Meeker, fullback. Some of the second string men played in a number of games and will be keenly missed. They are Bob Watson, E. S. Rule, W. L. Spencer, "Shorty" Macklin, C. E. Israel, J. C. Kepple and C. D. Merrill.

Milwaukee—The Palestine Foundation fund has now reached the $10,000 mark and there are still a few days left for solicitation. The quota for Milwaukee Zionists is $100,000.

"MAKE BUSINESS HERE BETTER; TRADE HERE"

"One of the most far reaching things which the people of this community can do by way of stimulating local business conditions, both for the balance of the year and throughout 1922," says W. J. Taylor, Cashier of the First National Bank, "would be to see that every possible dollar is spent here at home during the holiday season and throughout the New Year.

"This is not a new subject and we are apt to become hardened to 'trade at home' appeals. But we should understand that the dollar which is spent in local stores is in turn expended locally, and indirectly, that dollar in come part, returns again to the spender.

"Our local merchants have bought their holiday stocks carefully and offer an excellent selection at reasonable prices. If there is something special which a buyer desires, local dealers will gladly send away for such things and have them forwarded promptly.

"The big things which every man and woman should remember is that we are all interested in making this town a better town, in seeing it grow, in promoting good business conditions with a friendly spirit behind our every endeavor.

"Let's trade at home during the Christmas season and all through the year to come!"

Stationery Gift Boxes

There are many stationery gift boxes. Most of them are sold because of the box rather than for the quality of the paper within the box.

There are people, and the number is constantly increasing, who regard the paper of primary importance, realizing that it is the paper that carries the message and by which the writer is largely judged. It is the paper, therefore, that should be first considered in selecting a gift box.

There is no paper better than Old Hampshire. It identifies the user as one of discriminating taste and the giver as one of good judgment.

Old Hampshire Gift Boxes are neat, attractive, and dignified—containers in keeping with their contents. Old Hampshire Vellum boxes are covered with brown, lettered in gold and embossed. The paper and envelopes are ribbon tied. Old Hampshire Bond boxes are covered with green, lettered in gold and embossed. The paper and envelopes are banded.

Old Hampshire Bond has long been known as "The Stationery of a Gentleman," the Regent, Royal Club and Imperial or Semi-Business being the sizes quite generally accepted. Old Hampshire Vellum in the same sizes is equally popular. Each carries the watermark "Old Hampshire"; both are sturdily constructed, built with masculine strength, mixed with the ingredients of dignity and refinement and surface finished to please the most exacting.

On all orders for Christmas Gifts, we will imprint any set of initials or name in gold, blue, or black ink free of charge. Orders for prompt delivery should be placed early. Telephone or call—samples are on display at our office.

Christmas Dishes from Other Lands.

Christmas would not be Christmas in Hungary" said my Hungarian friend, "without fruit cake."

"Tell me how it is made," said I.

The description she gave me, well, I think you will agree with me, that it fairly makes your mouth water to think of it. And no wonder, for the luscious loaf must contain citron and orange peel, walnuts and almonds, cherries, dates, spices and hazelnuts. No frosting crowns this masterpiece, as it would in our country, but even so, doesn't it make you hungry?

Gingerbread boys are always baked for the children at holiday time in Hungary. Currants make features, and buttons, but here again no frosting is used. Small sugar cakes belong to the little folks too.

Before Christmas, cakes are placed on the table, and are eaten and replaced, until after. Christmas. [illegible] generous hospitality!

One of the large cakes is the famous "Torte." It reaches [illegible] layers high, just think of it. The layers are very thin, though, and their filling is made of chocolate and butter. The top layer is covered with burnt sugar. Oh, yum. Walnut cake is another of these layer delicacies made in a long flat loaf. Its principle distinction is its walnuts cooked in milk and honey.

Among the gems of the baking art that are a delight to the palate, are some of the Austrian confections.

These came in all shapes, variously decorated, sometimes with nuts, almonds and walnuts, bits of citron for leaves beside bright cherries, and little star shapes covered with sugar. "Strudel" is a flaky confection, the thin numberless layers of which resemble the cut leaves of cabbage. Cheese is sometimes used as a filling with nuts and then again there is the apple "strudle."

Austrian artists in cookery, make another dainty cake called "lovers' delight." A very rich filling of fruit is spaded into pastry. Narrow strips of plain pastry are laid over the top of this, in a round pie pan. After it is baked, powdered sugar is shaken over it. At last it is served, cut in very tiny squares on account of its [illegible]

A fruit cake baked like a loaf of bread is one of the Christmas joys in Sweden. It is called "Yule Cake." Similar to it is the German "Stollen." This is a large cake heavily frosted, and rolled over like a parkerhouse roll. It contains spices, citron, raisins and nuts.

Of course, in Germany, Christmas just must have its "Pfeffermuss", a tiny gingerbread cake coated with powdered sugar. "Matzepan" is a very rich cake. "Lebkuchen," honey cookies are natural companions to the ginger cakes. Little almond cakes, made of Almond paste come in all sorts of shapes. Stars there are, carrots, balls, baskets, and many other fanciful designs.

A special meat dish for Christmas is a loaf made of pork, which is allowed to jell. It is called "Sulze" and is served cold in slices, with parsley.

In England there appears the good mince pie and its great friend, the plum pudding. In Dicken's day—alas, no longer can it be served in this manner in the United States—the plum pudding arrived on the table in state, all alight with burning brandy, with a twig of holly in the midst. Young roast pig especially belongs to the holiday celebrations to commemorate the ancient boar's head of historic fame.

In France more attention is paid to New Year's Day. This is the time for the pleasant exchange of visits, calls, and happy greetings. "Open House" one finds everywhere, with the serving of tea.

Delicious little cakes, "Gateaux" accompany the tea. Tarts are among those present, with all sorts of fillings such as almond paste, and fruits—raspberries, strawberries, and cherries. "Brioch' is another one of these cakes, its pastry resembling our cream puffs without cream.

Perhaps, with the rapidly changing times in Europe, some of these ancient companions to the Christmas celebration will be pushed off the map. Let us hope not. Let us rather hope that the cook books will be preserved intact, and their palatable arts kept for coming generations.

Indian Cotton Cloth.

Indian cotton cloth is mentioned by Herodotus, and was known in Arabia in the Seventh century. In Spain cotton was quite extensively grown and manufactured in the Tenth century, but its manufacture was not introduced into other countries until some centuries later.

An "EASY" Electric Vacuum Washer will bring joy throughout the whole year. Get her one for Christmas and make it a a merry one this year.

The "EASY" Washes by Air Pressure and Suction

Press an ordinary glass bowl into a tub of soapy water. Notice how the air pressure forces the water underneath the bowl toward the bottom of the tub. By raising the bowl the suction underneath is so powerful that the water is raised above the surface.

The "EASY" VACUUM ELECTRIC WASHING MACHINE works on this same principle of air pressure and suction, gently, but surely, forcing the hot, soapy water through the meshes of the garments, removing every particle of dirt. There is no rubbing, dragging or tearing. The finest woolens, blankets, lingerie, and even baby things are washed spotlessly clean.

Gas heater heats water to any desired temperature.

The "EASY" is rust-proof, being made from solid copper, brass, aluminum and enameled steel.

The big polished copper tank is easy to keep clean. It has a larger capacity than any other electric washing machine. Easy to load and unload. Wringer starts, stops and reverses without interfering with the washing.

Christmas Edition.

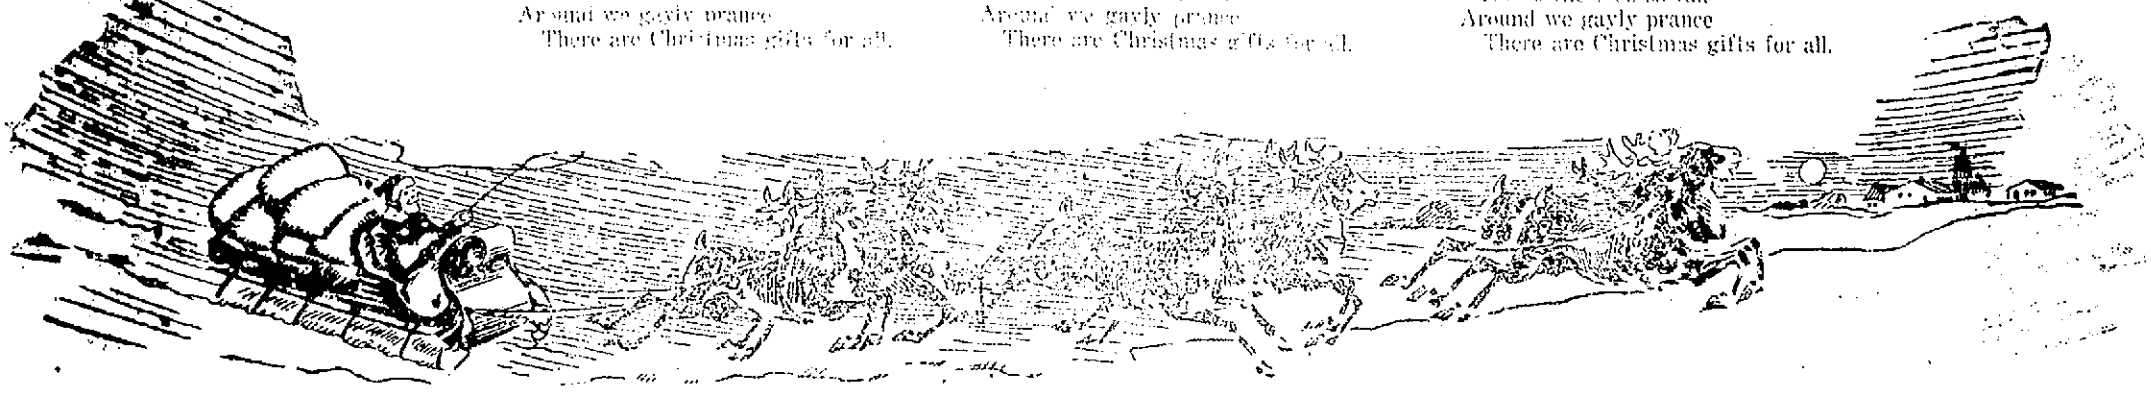
THE GIFT CAROL -- By Marjorie Howe Dixon

Around we swiftly dance
About the tree so tall
Around we gayly prance
There are Christmas gifts for all.

Oh here's a doll
For little Poll;
And so of course
There is a horse,
A nobby hub
For brother Bob,
A rummy tom!
There goes the drum
And here so shrill
For soldier Bill.
A kangaroo
A circus too
A jumping clown
For Jimmy Brown.
Around we swiftly dance
About the tree so tall
Around we gayly prance
There are Christmas gifts for all.

For Nancy Ann
A feather fan,
A purse, a ring
And pearly sling,
And dear old Dad,
Why aren't you glad?
Just look and see
What's on the tree.
Suspenders, blue,
A neck tie, too,
A hat of felt
A brand new belt,
Oh let us sing
And form a ring.
Around we swiftly dance
About the tree so tall
Around we gayly prance
There are Christmas gifts for all.

But now look here
For Mother, dear,
A parasol,
A pretty shawl.
And don't forget,
The breakfast set.
Come children four
And look for more.
This candy cane
So straight and vain,
Its color loud
Is much too proud,
Too good, too pure,
To last, I'm sure.
Around we swiftly dance
About the tree so tall
Around we gayly prance
There are Christmas gifts for all.



Children's Santa Letters Begin Today in this Section

Of course, the little folks are on their very best behavior just before Christmas, but it is rather a strain on the poor dears to be good, with all the attendant excitement of preparing gifts and keeping secrets. So why not let them help decorate the house and make some of the Christmas decorations? It will keep them from becoming bored, and still more important, from getting into mischief.

There are many things they can make for the tree as well as for the house. Even the littlest folks can string popcorn and make paper chains, of many bright colors. Popcorn in pink and white can be made to hang from branches, and the older children can use their ingenuity in creating pretty things with colored pictures on which tinsel backgrounds are pasted.

For an out-of-doors excursion in which old and young will be keenly interested there is the trip to the woods to gather evergreens. Pine branches, especially the white pine are graceful for use anywhere in the house, as are also hemlock twigs with tiny cones hanging from them. Ground pine lends itself to garlands nicely. If an old dead evergreen can be found which is shedding its bark, an armful of this will be found very fragrant when burned in the fireplace.

If these evergreens are brought in many days before Christmas, care must be taken to keep them very wet, so that they will not drop their needles.

A garland of pine decorated with red apples will give a different effect and yet carry the Christmas colors.

Among other plants available for use are the lovely flaming poinsettias, bitter-sweet. This latter can be kept all winter. Ivy makes a different household decoration, growing up on light trellises of wood or iron.

The childre nwill be interested in the growing of bulbs, but this must be started well ahead of Christmas, at least six weeks. They can gather pebbles for filling small bowls. The bulbs are planted on top of the stones and put away in the dark for two weeks. Oh yes, this part is very necessary so as to make the little roots grow long and firm. Then the bowls may be brought out into the sunlight.

Paper white narcissus, the Chinese sacred lily and hyacinths can be grown in this way, and made to blossom in time for Christmas. There is a fascination about these growing things that few can resist.

Before discussing Christmas candles let us mention the well known and ever-present (at Christmas) holly and mistletoe. It would never do to attempt to get along without them. Wreaths of holly with bright sashes of scarlet ribbon just must hang in the windows, and mistletoe must be safely hung where it will do the most harm.

All the regular candles through the house must be put away in tissue paper and Christmas candles substituted. Cherry red will be found becoming to some rooms, while others will feel happier with the lovely green bay berry candles tied with red ribbons.

For the window, is one is fortunate enough ot possess such a thing, a seven-branched candlestick can be used, its filagreed sticks all wound about with holly. I can assure you, it makes quite a "landscape."

Now as to mantlepieces and the table itself. Here's where the children can be the craftsmen again. Dishes piled with fruit are what we recommend for each mantleshelf. What shall we use for the dish? Why not a scooped out pumpkin? How do you like that for an idea? First one must make sure the pumpkin will stand quite firmly, and if necessary a slice be cut off to insure this. Then part of the top should be removed, and the inside cleaned very carefully and lined with waxed paper. The fruit can be piled in, and piled high above it too, with all the colors one can find. Red, yellow, and green apples, bananas, and oranges should be used.

A green squash, with its irregular shape makes an equally attractive dish and can be scooped out the same way.

For the center piece of the table a little scene can be worked out, which will give the children much pleasure. A mirror will make a pretty lake with its edges concealed under cotton "snow" sprinkled with mica. At one side of the lake where it will reflect in the water, a little cardboard house can stand. Its roof must be covered with snow too, and it just must have a very generous chimney. Because that is where Santa comes in, as we vrey well know. A red cotton Santa can sit atop the chimney or be in it with his little black boots sticking out. Trees made of the evergreens can stand about the house and the lake. If the children feel very ambitious, they can make a little cardboard sleigh for Santa and a pair of cardboard reindeer with stands so they will stay upright.

Then with appropriate place cards tied to sprigs of holly, or to tiny packages with foolish trifles in them, the table, will look and feel as Christmasy as the rest of the house.

Games for Children at Christmas

By Marjorie Howe Dixon

At Christmas time it seems especially appropriate to resurrect all the old games, that have amused children for ages past. Some of them are best played out-of-doors, while others must be played either within or without.

One of these, a general favorite, is mentioned in one of the Christmas celebrations in Dicken's "Pickwick Papers," and still earlier in Washington Irving's "Sketch Book." This is "Blind Man's Buff." Every one is so familiar with this good old game which will never lose its ability to amuse, so that the rules for playing it need not be given here.

"Hide and Seek" is another of these old "standbys." One variation here. We children called it "Cheese It." One child was "It." At goal he covered his eyes while he counted ten calling out "Cheese It" at the end of ten. He then opened his eyes and anyone he saw moving had to return to goal. When all had disappeared from sight he hunted until he found one of them, whom he must precede to goal. This child then became "It" and the game continued as before.

This game of course, is equally interesting whether played indoors or out. "Fox and Geese," another old favorite, is best played out in the snow. A large circle is tramped in the snow, with two diameters crossing it at right angles. The center thus formed is "Safety." The Fox is chosen and is "It" as in other games. He must catch one of the "geese." The other children, the "geese," run around and across the circle, no one leaving the beaten paths, of course. Any one standing at "Safety" cannot be tagged, but he must leave at once on the approach of another "goose." Once a goose is tagged, he becomes "fox" and must chase the others in turn.

Several of the old games involve running, which makes them just right for out-of-doors in cold weather. Where there is a large group of children, the ancient pastime "Run, Sheep, Run" will be found lively and ful lof interest.

The children are evenly divided, each group selecting a captain. Then there is held a secret consultation of each side with its respective captain, in which signals are arranged. Then one group with its captain leaves for hiding. They travel for some distance, marking their course with arrows in chalk on side walks, fences, or buildings. When they are safely hidden, their captain returns to the other group. The second group starts out to find them, guided by the arrows. As they continue, the captain of the hidden children, calls signals which indicate how near the pursuers are approaching. When he thinks the pursuers are far enough from the goal, he calls, "Run, Sheep, Run!" The hidden group then run into goal, while the others try to arrive first. If they do arrive first, it then becomes their turn to hide.

There is something so fascinating about this game that children will play it for days running.

Young people of high school age are all familiar with "Last Couple Out." This is often played in summer but can be just as interesting in winter. Where a barn dance was being held this game could be easily managed indoors, just so there was plenty of space in which to play.

For those who may never have indulged in this sport the simple rules are here given. Boys and girls line up as for a march, in pairs. The front couple calls, "Last Couple Out!" The end couple of the line separate and run for position at the front of the line. The couple there try to tag them before they reach it. Failing this, they drop out of the game. If they do tag the last couple before they reach the front position those two then drop out of the game. Thus the game continues until one couple is left triumphant!

For indoors, one form of charades is called "New York." Here two groups are necessary, each with a captain. One group leaves the room, and selecting a name, or a word of several syllables, arranges to act out the syllables in sections. For instance take the name "New-foundland." The first syllable can be handled in dialogue in which the word "new" is mentioned prominently. The second can be done in pantomine, a person "finding" something. The last, "land" can be discovered in pantomine.

Having decided on all the details, the group returns to the room where the others are waiting. The captains then carry through this dialogue.

First, "Here we come!"
Second, "Where from?"
First, "New York."
Second, "What's your trade."
First, Lemonade."
Second, "Give us some."

This is the signal for to start the dialogue, or pantomine. The opposite group try to guess the word which if they do they immediately try to catch or capture the first group. It is now the second group's turn for pantomine.

If one starts to think of these old games for use with children at Christmas several more will occur to him. For instance "Farmer in the Dell," and "Duck on the Rock" and many, many more. Games in which all can enter seem the best, for that brings up the Spirit of Chrisamas, a jolly good fellowship, a happy companionship of old and young together.

Prolific Sturgeon.

The Ruslan sturgeon, known as beluga or uhsco, is very large. It has been known to grow to the length of 20 to 25 feet and to weigh 3,000 pounds. At spawning time, a female produces from 2,000,000 to 3,000,000 eggs, constituting from one-fifth to one-third of the entire weight of the fish.

Buy A Man's Gift From A Man's Store

Every man likes to receive his gifts from the store where he knows that quality is one of the fundamental principles of the business.

And years of association with this store has gained for us that confidence which we highly prize.

Our Christmas stock of Clothing and accessories never was finer, never better, and never as comprehensive as right now. Because of the usual business we're anticipating this season we urge you to do your shopping early.

Give Him an Overcoat or a Suit of Clothes

How familiar it is at Christmas time to hear people say they don't know what to give. And how often they wind up at the eleventh hour by giving in a hurry something that they don't particularly like and which the recipient has no use for at all.

It is simply because there is a mistaken idea that a Christmas gift must be novel; Whereas the most ideal gift is one that is useful. Give a man a suit or an overcoat and contribute to his material well being. Such a gift combines service with sentiment, because it saves him money, and in these times that is one of the first things a gift should do.

It goes without saying that the gift should be of quality merchandise. We enjoy the distinction of being a store in Wisconsin Rapids that offers only quality clothes and furnishings.

$18 to $60

Christmas Dishes from Other Lands.

Christmas would not be Christmas in Hungary" said my Hungarian friend, "without fruit cake."

"Tell me how it is made," said I.

The description she gave me, well, I think you will agree with me, that it fairly makes your mouth water to think of it. And no wonder, for the luscious loaf must contain citron and orange peel, walnuts and almonds, cherries, dates, spices and hazelnuts. No frosting crowns this masterpiece as it would in our country, but even so, doesn't it make you hungry?

Gingerbread boys are always baked for the children at holiday time in Hungary. Currants make features, and buttons, but here again no frosting is used. Small sugar cakes belong to the little folks too.

Before Christmas, cakes are placed on the table, and are eaten and replaced, until after Christmas. Such generous hospitality!

One of the large cakes is the famous "Torte." It reaches twelve layers high, just think of it. The layers are very thin, though, and their filling is made of chocolate and butter. The top layer is covered with burnt sugar. Oh, yum. Walnut cake is another of these larger delicacies made in a long flat loaf. Its principle distinction is its walnuts cooked in milk and honey.

Among the gems of the baking art that are a delight to the palate, are some of the Austrian confections.

These came in all shapes, variously decorated, sometimes with nuts, almonds and walnuts, bits of citron for leaves beside bright cherries, and little star shapes covered with sugar.

"Strudel" is a flaky confection, the thin numberless layers of which resemble the cut leaves of cabbage. Cheese is sometimes used as a filling with nuts and then again there is the apple "strudle."

Austrian artists in cookery, make another dainty cake called "lovers' delight." A very rich filling of fruit is worked into pastry. Narrow strips of plain pastry are laid over the top of this, in a round pie pan. After it is baked, powdered sugar is shaken over it. At last it is served, cut in very tiny squares on account of its richness.

A fruit cake baked like a loaf of bread is one of the Christmas joys in Sweden. It is called "Yule Cake." Similar to it is the German "Stollen." This is a large cake heavily frosted, and rolled over like a parkerhouse roll. It contains spices, citron, raisins and nuts.

Of course, in Germany, Christmas just must have its "Pfeffermuss", a tiny gingerbread cake coated with powdered sugar. "Matzepan" is a very rich cake. "Lebkuchen," honey cookies are natural companions to the ginger cakes. Little almond cakes, made of Almond paste come in all sorts of shapes. Stars there are, carrots, balls, baskets, and many other fanciful designs.

A special meat dish for Christmas is a loaf made of pork, which is allowed to jell. It is called "Sulze" and is served cold in slices, with parsley.

In England there appears the good mince pie and its great friend, the plum pudding. In Dicken's day—alas, no longer can it be served in this manner in the United States—the plum pudding arrived on the table in state, all alight with burning brandy, with a twig of holly in the midst. Young roast pig especially belongs to the holiday celebrations to commemorate the ancient boar's head of historic fame.

In France more attention is paid to New Year's Day. This is the time for the pleasant exchange of visits, calls, and happy greetings. "Open House' 'one finds everywhere, with the serving of tea.

Delicious little cakes, "Gateaux" accompany the tea. Tarts are among those present, with all sorts of fillings such as almond paste, and fruits—raspberries, strawberries, and cherries. "Brioch' 'is another one of these cakes, its pastry resembling our cream puffs without cream.

Perhaps, with the rapidly changing times in Europe, some of these ancient companions, to the Christmas celebration will be pushed off the map.. Let us hope not. Let us rather hope that the cook books will be preserved intact, and their palatable arts kept for coming generations.

Indian Cotton Cloth.

Indian cotton cloth is mentioned by Herodotus, and was known in Arabia in the Seventh century. In Spain cotton was quite extensively grown and manufactured in the Tenth century, but its manufacture was not introduced into other countries until some centuries later.

Phone 86 and we'll arrange to send up that "Easy" Electric Washer

For Her Christmas Present

An "EASY" Electric Vacuum Washer will bring joy throughout the whole year. Get her one for Christmas and make it a a merry one this year.

The "EASY" Washes by Air Pressure and Suction

Press an ordinary glass bowl into a tub of soapy water. Notice how the air pressure forces the water underneath the bowl toward the bottom of the tub. By raising the bowl the suction underneath is so powerful that the water is raised above the surface.

The "EASY" VACUUM ELECTRIC WASHING MACHINE works on this same principle of air pressure and suction, gently, but surely, forcing the hot, soapy water through the meshes of the garments, removing every particle of dirt. There is no rubbing, dragging or tearing. The finest woolens, blankets, lingerie, and even baby things are washed spotlessly clean.

Gas heater heats water to any desired temperature.

The "EASY" is rust-proof, being made from solid copper, brass, aluminum and enameled steel.

The big polished copper tank is easy to keep clean. It has a larger capacity than any other electric washing machine. Easy to load and unload. Wringer starts, stops and reverses without interfering with the washing.

Won't you let the "EASY" do your next washing and prove that it will do all we say?

Painted things are especially interesting as gifts to make and have a charm all their own. They can be made to express so much of the giver's individuality. Then again they can be made to fit in with a definite scheme for a room, repeating its color effects with pleasing touches in similar tones.

A set of six colors in half pint cans in enamels costs about two dollars. Water color brushes will cost another dollar. With this outfit a variety of things can be painted, for that amount of paint will last a long time.

Care of brushes must be considered. Each time they are used they must be washed in soap and water. Turpentine is good for cleaning them, but is not enough, since in time it will stiffen the bristles. Never allow paint to dry in your brushes.

The thought of creating designs may rather frighten the beginner. It need not, if he will only remember not to attempt too much at the start. Avoid a naturalistic flower. A flower form made around dots from the end of the brush will be found to be very pretty and very effective and quite easy to do. A few experiments on paper will give you proficiency. There isa dainty jewel-like quality to the dots that admits of endless variations.

Glass candlesticks that may be purchased in the twenty-five and fifty-cent store, can be delightfully decorated in this manner. Coat hangers of wood painted all over pink or blue can be treated the same way. A pair of aluminum saltcellars will take on beauty by means of decoration. Other things will come to mind, such as boxes and wooden bowls, wooden knives and forks for salad sets, once one starts to look for them.

Another use for painting is found in decorating a set of oil cloth table mats. For this purpose use the dull finish oil cloth, called sanitas. Blue and white has been used many times and oft, but it has a clean fresh look that is very attractive. If your friend has a pattern hanging in her dining room, with help of some one in family get a sample of it. Then trace the pattern and carefully match the colors, to use for decoration of the table mats. When your friend discovers that the set matches her hangings she will be doubly pleased with your thoughtful gift.

Among the needlework gifts women love to make for each other are numbers of dainty trifles. For those of more practical turn of mind gifts of lasting qualities can be fashioned.

These latter are especially exemplified in the quaint "kitchenette" aprons with caps to match. Sets can be found all stamped on unbleached muslin, ready to work, at some of the stores. But where these are not available, a clever woman can make her own designs with materials at hand. One of the aprons had pockets of "brown-eyed susans." The petals were of yellow percale appliqued about brown centers. On the cap another "susan appeared. Still another had blue tea cups for pockets. Another apron had had flower pots of blue and white checked gingham. Above the pots, on the apron itself grew stiff little round flowers appliqued with embroidered stems. On each cap for each apron was a matching design.

Among the dainty trifles to be given each its measure of handwork, are colored handkerchiefs. How very, very sweet they look, two of them, each a different color folded in a little box. "One for blow, one for show" seems to be the motto, for a plain one associates itself with a very frilly, filmy one side by side.

Most of the plainer ones, sometimes colored, sometimes white, have drawn threads of colors for decoration. Tiny embroidered flowers are often added in fascinating groups. Frilly "hankies" are new this season being edged with net. Colored ones are edged with white, and then again with contrasting colors. Wee spots of colored embroidery are added.

A pretty camisole of wide lace insertion and ribbon can be quickly made. Wide pale pink ribbon forms the lower half with a narrow casing for elastic. The upper half is insertion, with an edging of lace and a narrow beading for the ribbon draw strings. Shoulder straps can be ribbon or insertion.

For those who enjoy doing drawn work there are several varieties of collars and cuffs, on which to bestow one's dainty stitches, for the purpose of making very acceptable gifts. One set of collars and cuffs was hemstitched with an inch hem of canary yellow linen. Another was very simple and smart with a single line of drawn work inside the hem, and a narrow edging of filet.

Embroidered dots make clever trimmings for these tailored sets and if outlined with black, where a colored material is used, are very effective.

An unusual handbag designed for use with a summer costume is one about eight inches deep, crocheted with colored raffia. The bag has a wired top covered with raffia and closes with a loop fastening over an oral knob. A wide handle or strap with which to carry it is also made of crocheted raffia. One of these in dull petunia color had raffia pansies for decorations about its top. Others had clusters of matching flowers of various colors.

Combs and fans similarly decorated are to be worn with party frocks this winter and the making of them presents aninteresting problem to the designer. Velvet petals may form the entire fan while the comb is adorned with balls to match. A round comb for miladi of the bobbed hair is completely covered with tiny rosebuds whilst a knot of them decorates her chiffon fan. White velvet flowers as a corsage on a black gown can be repeated in one's hair atop a high comb. In fact when one really gets started on the subject, there is no end to the variety of delightful combinations of colors and flowers to be thought out, and so constructed as to make gifts of unusual charm.

The gift one makes surely expresses love to the recipient. For without a real affection, one could not possibly desire to put in all those little stitches, or careful touches of painting that the made gift shows forth.

"Is there really a Santa Claus, Daddy?" asked Alfred, his anxious eyes aglow as he stood by his father's knee.

It was the night before Christmas and the family was gathered together in the living room before the fireplace whose flashing and dancing flames gladdened on the silver and gold festoons decorating the Christmas tree. An irregular row of stockings hung from the mantle and were silhouetted against the fire. The family had had a happy time listening to the Christmas Carols from the phonograph and to their father who was gifted with a remarkable fund of stories.

It was now time for Alfred to go to bed, so mother had already left the room. He, however, was in no hurry.

"Is there a Santa Claus?" he asked.

"Yes, my lad, there is," responded his father. "Some folks will try to tell you that Old St. Nick is just a story and not real at all. I feel sorry for those kind of people. Do you know how old Santa Claus is?"

Alfred shook his head.

"Santa Claus," continued his father, "is as old as old can be, some of his ways have been long before there ever were little boys and girls.

Now, just sit real carefully and I'll tell you a secret about Santa Claus that most folks don't know. Santa [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] not for Christmas [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] Santa Claus.

[illegible]

[illegible] fun.

Alfred [illegible]

[illegible]

"Well, sir, [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

Of course, the little folks are on their very best behavior just before Christmas, but it is rather a strain on the poor dears to be good, with all the attendant excitement of preparing gifts and keeping secrets. So why not let them help decorate the house and make some of the Christmas decorations? It will keep them from becoming bored, and still more important, from getting into mischief.

There are many things they can make for the tree as well as for the house. Even the littlest folks can string popcorn and make paper chains, of many bright colors. Popcorn in pink and white can be made to hang from branches, and the older children can use their ingenuity in creating pretty things with colored pictures on which tinsel backgrounds are pasted.

For an out-of-doors excursion in which old and young will be keenly interested there is the trip to the woods to gather evergreens. Pine branches, especially the white pine are graceful for use anywhere in the house, as are also hemlock twigs with tiny cones hanging from them. Ground pine lends itself to garlands nicely. If an old dead evergreen can be found which is shedding its bark, an armful of this will be found very fragrant when burned in the fireplace.

If these evergreens are brought in many days before Christmas, care must be taken to keep them very wet, so that they will not drop their needles.

A garland of pine decorated with red apples will give a different effect and yet carry the Christmas colors.

Among other plants available for use are the lovely flaming poinsettias, bitter-sweet. This latter can be kept all winter. Ivy makes a different household decoration, growing up on light trellises of wood or iron.

The childre nwill be interested in the growing of bulbs, but this must be started well ahead of Christmas, at least six weeks. They can gather pebbles for filling small bowls. The bulbs are planted on top of the stones and put away in the dark for two weeks. Oh yes, this part is very necessary so as to make the little roots grow long and firm. Then the bowls may be brought out into the sunlight.

Paper white narcissus, the Chinese sacred lily and hyacinths can be grown in this way, and made to blossom in time for Christmas. There is a fascination about these growing things that few can resist.

Before discussing Christmas candles let us mention the well known and ever-present (at Christmas) holly and mistletoe. It would never do to attempt to get along without them. Wreaths of holly with bright sashes of scarlet ribbon just must hang in the windows, and mistletoe must be safely hung where it will do the most harm.

All the regular candles through the house must be put away in tissue paper and Christmas candles substituted. Cherry red will be found becoming to some rooms, while others will feel happier with the lovely green bay berry candles tied with red ribbons.

For the window, is one is fortunate enough ot possess such a thing, a seven-branched candlestick can be used, its filagreed sticks all wound about with holly. I can assure you, it makes quite a "landscape."

Now as to mantlepieces and the table itself. Here's where the children can be the craftsmen again. Dishes piled with fruit are what we recommend for each mantleshelf. What shall we use for the dish? Why not a scooped out pumpkin? How do you like that for an idea? First one must make sure the pumpkin will stand quite firmly, and if necessary a slice be cut off to insure this. Then part of the top should be removed, and the inside cleaned very carefully and lined with waxed paper. The fruit can be piled in, and piled high above it too, with all the colors one can find. Red, yellow, and green apples, bananas, and oranges should be used.

A green squash, with its irregular shape makes an equally attractive dish and can be scooped out the same way.

For the center piece of the table a little scene can be worked out, which will give the children much pleasure. A mirror will make a pretty lake with its edges concealed under cotton "snow" sprinkled with mica. At one side of the lake where it will reflect in the water, a little cardboard house can stand. Its roof must be covered with snow too, and it just must have a very generous chimney. Because that is where Santa comes in as we vrey well know. A red cotton Santa can sit atop the chimney or be in it with his little black boots sticking out. Trees made of the evergreens can stand about the house and the lake. If the children feel very ambitious, they can make a little cardboard sleigh for Santa and a pair of cardboard reindeer with stands so they will stay upright.

Then with appropriate place cards tied to sprigs of holly, or to tiny packages with foolish trifles in them, the table, will look and feel as Christmasy as the rest of the house.

THIS YEAR WHY NOT GIVE

Footwear—the Practical Gift

The best gift is the practical gift—and we are prepared again, as usual, to give you the best in footwear for the Holiday Season. Christmas at Bracebridge Hall

By Marjorie Howe Dixon

When you pick up Washington Irving's "Sketch Book" and read among his delightful stories and descriptive incidents, you feel that Irving and Charles Dickens are alike in their appreciation and love for old English customs, particularly holiday customs. We all remember the Christmas cheer in the Christmas Carol and in Pickwick Papers. Dickens portrays so vividly that we feel, see and hear every detail.

Our own writer, Irving, in his George Washington Irving, our first president, gives us his own keen delight in Christmas old customs. To express it in his own words he says: "There is nothing in English literature exercises a more delightful spell over my imagination than the lingering traces of the holiday customs and manners and games of former times."

With this feeling he has given us a memorable description of his experience at Bracebridge Hall.

It will be remembered that he was traveling in England during the winter and making a tour in Yorkshire by stage-coach on the day before Christmas. Arriving at an inn he chanced to meet Frank Bracebridge, a "young gentleman," with whom he had once journeyed in Europe. Bracebridge promptly invited Irving to his ancestral home a few miles distant where his father would keep Christmas in "old fashioned style." The manor was some distance from the main road which gave it every opportunity to be secluded and aloof from the more progressive spirit of the cities. Bracebridge's father "being a representative of the oldest family in the neighborhood, and a great part of the peasantry being his tenants, is much looked to and, in general, was known simply by the appellative of The 'Squire, a title which has been accorded to the head of the family since time memorial."

As Irving and his friend came to the Hall the sound of music and dancing greeted them from the servant's end of the building. "Upon a great deal of revelry was prevailing." So joyous was the welcome from young Bracebridge had to ring repeatedly before gaining entrance. As soon as they were announced the old 'Squire came forward and greeted them warmly and they were ushered at once into the central hall and introduced to the motley assemblage of different branches of the house family.

The evening was spent in games and songs led by the Master Simon while the "Old 'Squire, from seated in his hereditary chair, by the hospitable fire, looked of his ancestors and looking around him like the sun of a system, beaming warmth and gladness to every heart." The old 'Squire adhered to all customs in having his own minstrels and no music was soon had for the dancing.

Master Simon and the two eldest sons of the 'Squire, one an officer and the other an officer, were the chief merry makers, cordially seconded in their dances and the life of company between the young officer and Julia, a pretty ward of the old gentleman.

At last the party broke up for the night with the old custom of shaking hands and Irving was conducted to his chamber, in an antique part of the manor.

Irving was awakened the next morning, which was Christmas, by the "sound of little feet pattering outside of the door and a whispering consultation. Presently a merry peal of laughter ran round the hall in response to the call within that the coast was clear, and on throwing open the door the children burst in upon me, headed by the Master Simon, who, I understood, had been the ringleader in all the mischief."

Irving was soon called by a servant to join the family in prayers, a service that was followed by the singing of carols. After the service breakfast was announced. A little later in the morning Irving went about the grounds but presently he heard the bell of the village hall which called the community to church.

It is to be remembered that some centuries ago the celebration of Christmas became so uproarious and mischievous that it lost its sacred aspect and with the advent of the Puritans in political power, Christmas as a holiday became taboo and remained until the restoration of Charles the Second. This period of history was fraught with political and religious controversy but in "Merrie England" the controversies were of the church and Christmas was in vogue. As a consequence Irving finds much indignation in the church when at Bracebridge Hall because the vicar had preached against a mince pie, which had been taken over a country before.

"The good vicar," says Irving, "gave a most lamentable account of the state of morals and religion in the parish, and particularly of the profanation of Christmas by the introduction of mince pies, which he stigmatized as the food of idolatry. He kindled into a fervent zeal against the enemy of his content and lost sight of imaginary foes with whom he had to contend."

The great feature celebrated the approaching Christmas in the traditional manner of the Bracebridge and in great style. The 'Squire had no feather bed, but had ordered that no fire should be lighted in any bedchamber except that of the King of Christmas, which occurred the day and night. Master Simon had organized a band of musicians to celebrate Christmas Eve by serenading the neighbors with music of drums and fife, and "horns and bassoons" of the "spontaneous madness" by which occurred the night before and on through the day and night. Master Simon had organized a band of musicians to celebrate Christmas Eve by serenading the neighbors with music of drums and fife, and "horns and bassoons" of the "spontaneous madness" by which occurred the night before and on through the day and night.

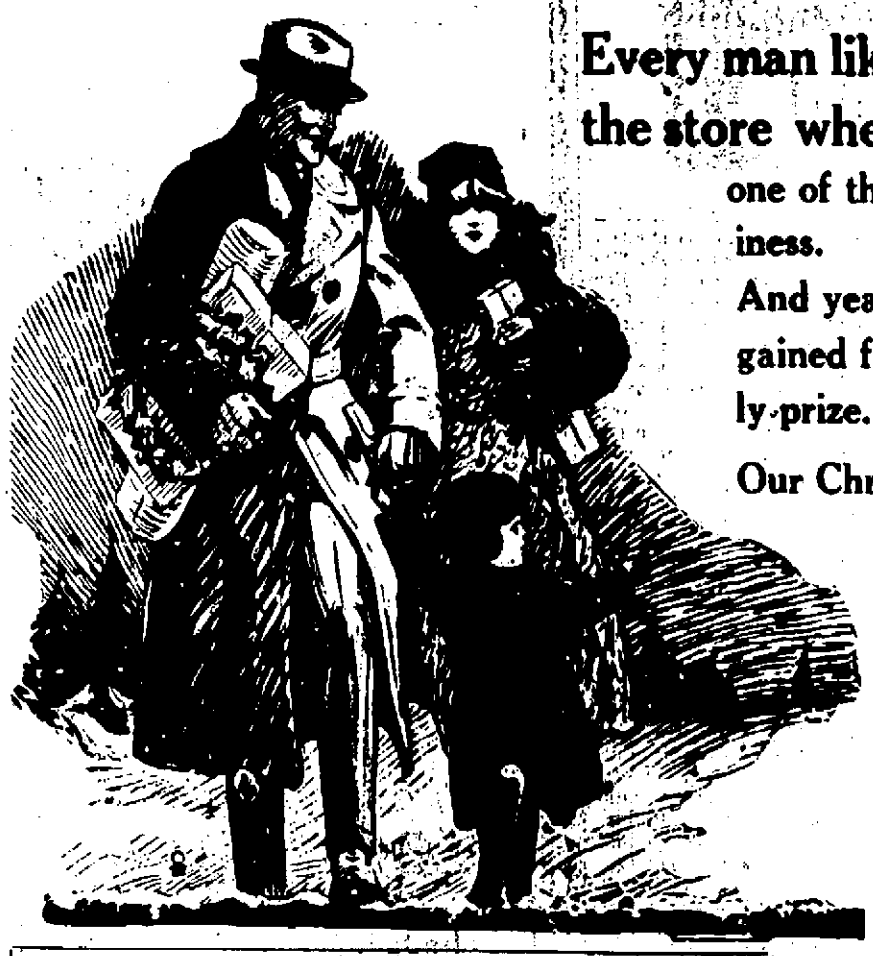
Buy A Man's Gift From A Man's Store



Every man likes to receive his gifts from the store where he knows that quality is one of the fundamental principles of the business.

And years of association with this store has gained for us that confidence which we highly prize.

Our Christmas stock of Clothing and accessories never was finer, never better, and never as comprehensive as right now. Because of the usual business we're anticipating this season we urge you to do your shopping early.

Give Him an Overcoat or a Suit of Clothes

How familiar it is at Christmas time to hear people say they don't know what to give. And how often they wind up at the eleventh hour by giving in a hurry something that they don't particularly like and which the recipient has no use for at all.

It is simply because there is a mistaken idea that a Christmas gift must be novel; Whereas the most ideal gift is one that is useful. Give a man a suit or an overcoat and contribute to his material well being. Such a gift combines service with sentiment, because it saves him money, and in these times that is one of the first things a gift should do.

It goes without saying that the gift should be of quality merchandise. We enjoy the distinction of being a store in Wisconsin Rapids that offers only quality clothes and furnishings.

Two Good Stores

By Marjorie Howe Dixon

Painted things are especially interesting as gifts to make and have a charm all their own. They can be made to express so much of the giver's individuality. Then again they can be made to fit in with a definite scheme for a room, repeating its color effects with pleasing touches in similar tones.

A set of six colors in half pint cans in enamels costs about two dollars. Water color brushes will cost another dollar. With this outfit a variety of things can be painted, for that amount of paint will last a long time.

Care of brushes must be considered. Each time they are used they must be washed in soap and water. Turpentine is good for cleaning them, but is not enough, since in time it will stiffen the bristles. Never allow paint to dry in your brushes.

The thought of creating designs may rather frighten the beginner. It need not, if he will only remember not to attempt too much at the start. Avoid a naturalistic flower. A flower form made around dots from the end of the brush will be found to be very pretty and very effective and quite easy to do. A few experiments on paper will give you proficiency. There isa dainty jewel-like quality to the dots that admits of endless variations.

Glass candlesticks that may be purchased in the twenty-five and fifty-cent store, can be delightfully decorated in this manner. Coat hangers of wood painted all over pink or blue can be treated the same way. A pair of aluminum saltcellars will take on beauty by means of decoration. Other things will come to mind, such as boxes and wooden bowls, wooden knives and forks for salad sets, once one starts to look for them.

Another use for painting is found in decorating a set of oil cloth table mats. For this purpose use the dull finish oil cloth, called sanitas. Blue and white has been used many times and oft, but it has a clean fresh look that is very attractive. If your friend has a pattern hunging in her dining room, with help of some one in family get a sample of it. Then trace the pattern and carefully match the colors, to use for decoration of the table mats. When your friend discovers that the set matches her hangings she will be doubly pleased with your thoughtful gift.

Among the needlework gifts women love to make for each other are numbers of dainty trifles. For those of more practical turn of mind gifts of lasting qualities can be fashioned.

These latter are especially exemplified in the quaint "kitchenette" aprons with caps to match. Sets can be found all stamped on unbleached muslin, ready to work, at some of the stores. But where these are not available, a clever woman can make her own designs with materials at hand. One of the aprons had pockets of "brown-eyed susans." The petals were of yellow percale appliqued about brown centers. On the cap another "susan appeared. Still another had blue tea cups for pockets. Another apron had had flower pots of blue and white checked gingham. Above the pots, on the apron itself grew stiff little round flowers appliqued with embroidered stems. On each cap for each apron was a matching design.

Among the dainty trifles to be given each its measure of handwork, are colored handkerchiefs. How very, very sweet they look, two of them, each a different color folded in a little box. "One for blow, one for show" seems to be the motto, for a plain one associates itself with a very frilly, filmy one side by side.

Most of the plainer ones, sometimes colored, sometimes white, have drawn threads of colors for decoration. Tiny embroidered flowers are often added in fascinating groups. Frilly "hankies" are new this season being edged with net. Colored ones are edged with white, and then again with contrasting colors. Wee spots of colored embroidery are added.

A pretty camisole of wide lace insertion and ribbon can be quickly made. Wide pale pink ribbon forms the lower half with a narrow casing for elastic. The upper half is insertion, with an edging of lace and a narrow beading for the ribbon draw strings. Shoulder straps can be ribbon or insertion.

For those who enjoy doing drawn work there are several varieties of collars and cuffs, on which to bestow one's dainty stitches, for the purpose of making very acceptable gifts. One set of collars and cuffs was hemstitched with an inch hem of canary yellow linen. Another was very simple and smart with a single line of drawn work inside the hem, and a narrow edging of filet.

Embroidered dots make clever trimmings for these tailored sets and if outlined with black, where a colored material is used, are very effective.

An unusual handbag designed for use with a summer costume is one about eight inches deep, crocheted with colored raffia. The bag has a wired top covered with raffia and closes with a loop fastening over an oval knob. A wide handle or strap with which to carry it is also made of crocheted raffia. One of these in dull petunia color had raffia pansies for decorations about its top. Others had clusters of matching flowers of various colors.

Combs and fans similarly decorated are to be worn with party frocks this winter and the making of them presents aninteresting problem to the designer. Velvet petals may form the entire fan while the comb is adorned with balls to match. A round comb for miladi of the bobbed hair is completely covered with tiny rosebuds whilst a knot of them decorates her chiffon fan. White velvet flowers as a corsage on a black gown can be repeated in one's hair atop a high comb. In fact when one really gets started on the subject, there is no end to the variety of delightful combinations of colors and flowers to be thought out, and so constructed as to make gifts of unusual charm.

The gift one makes surely expresses love to the recipient. For without a real affection, one could not possibly desire to put in all those little stitches, or careful touches of painting that the made gift shows forth.

By Marjorie Howe Dixon

"Is there really a Santa Claus, daddy?" asked Alfred, his anxious eyes aglow as he stood by his father's knee.

It was the night before Christmas and the family was gathered together in the living room before the fireplace whose flashing and dancing flames glistened on the silver and gold festoons decorating the Christmas tree. An irregular row of stockings hung from the mantle and were silhoutted against the fire. The family had a happy time listening to the Christmas Carols from the phonograph and to their father who was gifted with a remarkable fund of stories.

It was now time for Alfred to go to bed, his mother had already left the room. He, however, was in no hurry.

"Is there a Santa Claus?" he asked.

"Yes, my lad, there is," responded his father. "Some folks will try to tell you that Old St. Nick is just a story and not real at all. I feel sorry for those kind of people. Do you know how old Santa Claus is?"

Alfred shook his head.

"Santa Claus," continued his father, "is as old as old can be. Santa Claus was here long before there ever were little boys and girls.

Now listen real carefully and I'll tell you a secret about Santa Claus which most folks don't know. Santa Claus is love. Yes, sir, Santa Claus is love. It is love who will fill the stocking tonight.

"Course you can't see love any more than you can see Santa Claus but he is not just the same."

A light of understanding brightened the lad's face. His father knew he would be willing for him, but who could resist continuing before such an earnest listener?

"Now then, let me tell you something more about Santa which most people have forgotten all about. Santa Claus is with us the whole year around and not just for Christmas only. Sure, it is love who takes the basket of jellies and pies and chicken to the poor boys and girls who have no father or mother to take care of them.

"So then whenever any folks tell you that Santa isn't real you just tell them you know better.

"Now before mother calls us again maybe I can tell you something else about Santa. He always has his messengers. Everybody who loves is Santa's messenger. Wouldn't you like to be one? I've tried to be one for a long time and it is just lots of fun."

Alfred expressed his delight with a perfectly kissable smile as he nodded his head.

"Well sir! Tomorrow is Christmas and it is the time for little boys and girls and everybody too, to have a happy joyous day. Tomorrow you will wake up early, I know. You will waken too early for me but since it is only once a year I'll forgive you. Anyhow, after you have found all the wonderful things stuffed in your long stockings and played with all the things hidden under the Christmas tree, we are all going to be messengers for Santa Claus.

"You and mother and I are going to fix up a big basket with good things to eat. We will bundle up real warm and take the basket around to the block beyond the old church. Widow Miranda Eves in a little cottage with her little girl and we are going to surprise them with this basket. They will be so happy because they will know that Santa Claus has not forgotten them. Won't that be fun?"

"Oh yes, daddy," exclaimed Alfred clapping his hands, "Let's be Santa's messengers. Oh I can hardly wait until morning!"

"All right," said his father," the quicker to bed the sooner will Christmas be here. Come on."

Alfred grasped his father's hand and they marched off in response to the mother's insistent call.

Christmas at Bracebridge Hall

By Marjorie Howe Dixon

When you pick up Washington Irving's "Sketch Book" and browse among his delightful stories and descriptive incidents, you find that Irving and Charles Dickens are akin alike in their appreciation and love for old English customs, particularly holiday customs. We all remember the Christmas cheer in the Christmas Carol and in Pickwick Papers which Dickens portrays so vivid, that we feel, see and hear every detail.

Our own writer, Irving, the first George Washington Irving our first president, gives us his own keen delight in Christmas celebrations. To express it in his own words he says "There is nothing in England that exercises a more delightful spell over my imagination than the lingering of the holiday customs and rural games of former times."

With this feeling he has given us a memorable description of his experience at Bracebridge Hall.

It will be remembered that he was traveling in England during the winter and making a tour in York by stage-coach on the day before Christmas. Arriving at an inn he chanced to meet Frank Bracebridge, a "young gentleman," with whom he had once journeyed in Europe. Bracebridge promptly invited Irving to his ancestral home a few miles distant where his father would keep Christmas in "old fashioned style." The manor was some distance from the main road which gave it every opportunity to be secluded and aloof from the more progressive spirit of the cities. Bracebridge's father "being a representative of the eldest family in the neighborhood, and a great part of the peasantry being his tenants is much looked to and, in general, was known simply by the appellative of The 'Squire; a title which had been accorded to the head of the family since time memorial."

As Irving and his friend came to the Hall the sound of music and dancing greeted them from the one end's end of the building "where a great deal of revelry was prevailed. So joyous was the mirth that young Bracebridge had to ring repeatedly before gaining entrance. As soon as they were announced the old 'Squire came forward and greeted them warmly and they were led at once into the central hall and introduced to the company composed of different branches of the large family.

The evening was spent in games and songs led by the chief Master Simon while the "Old 'Squire (who seated in his hereditary chair by the hospitable fireside of his ancestors and looking around him like the sun of a system, beaming warmth and gladness to every heart." The old 'Squire adhered to the custom of having his own minstrels and so music was soon had for the dancing.

Master Simon and the two other sons of the 'Squire, one an Oxonian, the other an officer, were the chief merry makers, especially with their dances and the bit of romance between the young officer and Julia, a pretty ward of the old gentleman.

At last the party broke up for the night with the old custom of shake hands and Irving was conducted to his chamber, in an antiquated part of the manor.

Irving was wakened the next morning, which was Christmas, by the "sound of little feet pattering outside of the door and voices in eager consultation. Presently a choir of small voices chanted forth an old Christmas Carol, the burden of which was:

"Rejoice, our Savior He was born
On Christmas day in the morning."

He arose and dressed quickly and opening his door suddenly he "beheld one of the most beautiful little fairy scenes that a painter could imagine. It consisted of a boy and two girls, the eldest not more than six and lovely as seraphs. They were going the rounds of the house singing at every chamber." Irving's sudden appearance frightened them into momentary bashfulness. They remained for a moment playing on their lips with their fingers and now and then stealing a shy glance from under their eyebrows, until, as if by one impulse, they scampered away, and as they turned an angle of the gallery, he heard them laughing in triumph at their escape."

Irving was soon called by a servant to join the family in prayers, a service that was followed by the singing of carols. After the service breakfast was announced. A little later in the morning Irving went about the grounds but presently he heard the toll of the village bell which rallied the community to church.

It is to be remembered that some centuries ago the celebration of Christmas became so uproarious and bacchanalian that it lost its sacred aspect and with the advent of the Puritans in political power, Christmas as a holiday became taboo and remained until the restoration of Charles the Second. This period of history was fraught with political and religious controversy but in England the controversies were of the court and Christmas was in vogue. As a consequence Irving finds much amusement in the church service at Bracebridge Hall because the service was a battle over a question which had been settled over a century before.

"The parson," says Irving, "gave us a learned discourse on the rites and ceremonies of Christmas, showing from the earliest accounts of history, by the early fathers of the church and enforcing them by the authorities of the church. He kindled into warmth with the ardour of his content, and the host of imaginary foes with whom he had to combat....."

The parson further exhorted the congregation to celebrate Christmas in the traditional manner of their forefathers and to make merry. The congregation needed no further argument as the sermon as the church was in the parsonage made merry with roast and boiled, making the village and ringing out time for the Christmas day.

We spent Christmas day and one hundred of the parsonage, and by the aid of those days with courses of sirloin beef, peacock pie, turkey, plum pudding, roast beef, mince pie and plenty of the World's best of home brew. I also believe that we knew more about the spontaneous madness, revelry and revelry which occurred during the dinner and on through the night to the day and night. Master Simon in this instance engineered a [illegible] introducing "Ancient Christmas" with a beat of drums and a [illegible] of pipes and [illegible] the "real connection" of [illegible]."

If we ourselves cannot enjoy such similar Christmases we certainly can thank the shade of Washington Irving for his consideration to [illegible] in days past.
